PRESTON'S DIVISION—BUCKNER'S CORPS.
BRIG. GEN. WILLIAM PRESTON.
SEPT. 20th, 1862, 4:00 P.M.

GRACE'S BRIGADE—COL. GEN. ARCHIBALD GRACE, JR.
TRIGG'S BRIGADE—COL. ROBERT C. TRIGG.
KELLEY'S BRIGADE—COL. JOHN H. KELLEY.

ON THE 20th INST. PRESTON'S DIVISION, ONLY ONE BRIGADE OF WHICH (TRIGG'S) HAD THIS FAR BEEN ENGAGED, WAS ENGAGED BY THE UNION ARMY UNDER THE COMMAND OF BRIG. GEN. ARCHIBALD GRACE, JR., WHO WAS TEMPORARILY ASSISTED IN THE ASSAULT ON BRIDGE CROSS BY COL. JOHN H. KELLEY'S BRIGADE, WITH KELLEY'S ON ITS LEFT, ASSAULTING DIRECTLY BEFORE 4 P.M., ATTACKING THE FRONTS OF GRACE'S BRIGADES, STANLEY, AND BRADMAN. THE ASSAULT LASTED OVER AN HOUR, IT FAILED IN FRONT OF GRACE, ALTHOUGH GRACE'S BRIGADES PROCEEDED IN THE GALLERY OF THE UNION LINE IN STANLEY'S CENTER, NOW COMMANDING BY COL. W. L. STANLEY, AND HELD IT FOR AN HOUR, BUT WERE FINALLY FORCED TO WITHDRAW. THE BRIGADES OF KELLEY'S BRIGADE MOVED TO THE LEFT, AND AS THEY REACHED THE WEST OF THE BRIDGE FOUND THEMSELVES CONFRONTED BY THREE UNION REGIMENTS—THE 6TH AND 21ST MISS, AND THE 2ND MISSOURI—WHICH HAD BEEN LEFT ON THE LINE BY MISTAKE WHEN GRACE'S BRIGADES WITHDREW AT DUSK, AND WERE TO THE RIGHT IN THE REAR OF THESE REGIMENTS, AND ACTING IN CONNECTION WITH KELLEY, CAPTURED A LARGE QUANTITY OF GUNS. THESE BRIGADES NEXT ATTEMPTED, BY A SIMILAR MOVE, TO CAPTURE THE BRIGADES OF BRADMAN'S BRIGADE, BUT THEY WERE UNDETERMINED AND THE ATTEMPT WAS DEFEATED. THIS WAS THE LAST FIGHTING OF THE BATTLE. THE TOTAL STRENGTH IN ACTION DURING THE ASSAULT WAS 8,576. TOTAL LOSS, 1,000. PERCENTAGE OF LOSS IN AN HOUR AND A HALF 16.75.

Working Heart of UDC Beats in Marble Halls

By Elizabeth Coburn

A one-story white marble building, clean of line and resplendent with two massive bronze doors, stands at 328 North Boulevard.

Seldom open to the public, it houses the business offices—the working heart—of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

But the structure is more than a headquarters. It is a monument to an age and to the people of that age.

THE MEMORIAL Building to the Women of the Confederacy, as the Georgia marble structure is named officially, was completed in 1957 at a cost of $330,000. Today, the building and its furnishings are valued at close to $700,000.

Housed within the walls are pieces of priceless furniture—all of which was given to the building—and more than 600,000 records of Confederate veterans.

There are also cards on the 40,000 living members of the UDC who reside throughout the United States and in Paris, France.

All major UDC business is handled here and much of the business of the President-General, Mrs. Robert Bachman of Washington, comes through this office.

THE STRUCTURE, with contents at all times guarded by locked doors, is open to UDC members from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. It is open to the public only on the second and fourth Sundays of each month from 3 to 5 p.m. Until two years ago, the building was never open to the public.

The gleaming structure also unlocks its great front doors, which cost $26,000, for special occasions, such as teas for the Governor of Virginia, the executive board of the organization and the Children of the Confederacy.

And it opens them during convention time, as it will this week when the 69th annual convention of the UDC is held here.

THE BUILDING is graciously furnished throughout. There is the quiet elegance of the stately homes of the ante-bellum era.

The dining room, or the Lee

Camp room, contains a beautiful table and a 150-year-old corner cupboard. Portraits of Mrs. Robert E. Lee and Mrs. Thomas J. Jackson look down from one wall and at the far end of the room a portrait of Winnie Davis, the First Daughter of the Confederacy, commands attention.

Across from the dining room is the modern business office. Next to it is the cosy and modern kitchen.

In the center of the building is the Great Hall, lined with flags of every state and country which boasts a UDC chapter. During the coming convention a flag from Alaska will be dedicated in recognition of the organization of the first chapter of that state.

This hall is used for meetings of the executive board and for special occasions.

A huge canvas of the Monitor-Merrimac battle hangs over the speaker's platform and at either side is a grand piano and an electric organ which were bequeathed to the UDC.

A SMALLER HALL on the north side of the Great Hall contains an old curio cabinet and a replica of the Surrender Table.

The parlor—its furnishings were given by one North Carolina chapter at a cost of $8,000—displays several original pieces including a Queen Anne table and a chest which came from England. Scrapbooks filled with newspaper clippings and Confederate letters are kept under glass in this room.

"They are said to be priceless," said Mrs. Kermit F. Grippen, executive secretary of the UDC and a full-time worker at the building.

A conference room contains a walnut desk with inlaid red leather and, across the hall, a "catch-all" room holds the Confederate Strongbox—a 5,600 pound safe that survived the capture of Richmond.

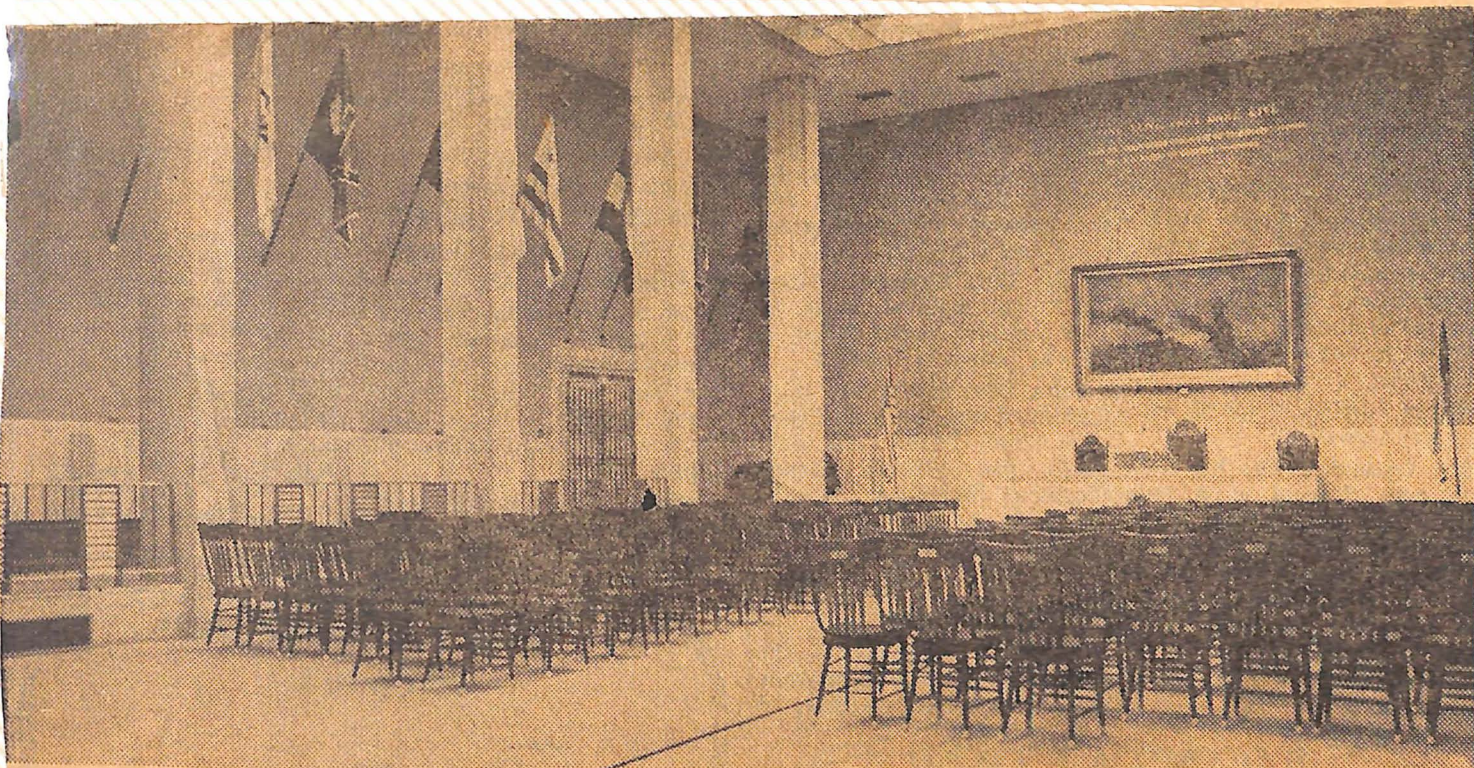

TWO THOUSAND volumes on the Civil War line the walls of the library which is dedicated to Mrs. Meriwether Goodlett, who founded the UDC in 1894.

Showcases contain such items as a mirror which was in Jefferson Davis' possession when he was captured.

A carpeted entrance hall displays miniatures of ex-presidents-general of the UDC.

Rebel yells will be ringing through the air and Yankees will be biting the dust Sunday as the 14th and 25th Virginia cavalries hold a re-enactment of the Battle of Hanging Rock near Salem.

About 100 troops are expected to participate in the re-enactment, which will feature two artillery pieces, one an original brass 16-pounder borrowed from the town of Buena Vista.

Sponsors also are hoping to have a few mounted soldiers.

The 14th, with members from the Roanoke area, and the 25th, from Pulaski, will try to duplicate the units from their areas during the Civil War.

They will be using first person enacting, staying in character for the weekend, including cooking over a fire, eating with old utensils and carrying pocket watches instead of wristwatches.

Sutlers, Civil War peddlers, will be on the site with a variety of period items such as newspapers, clothing, and weapons for sale.

This will be the first year for the re-enactment, but participants hope this event will stimulate an interest in future ones.

"We want to give the valley an idea of the history it has," said Dwayne Cales, a trooper with the 14th Virginians and sanitation worker for the City of Roanoke. "A lot of people don't realize what we have right here in our own backyard. We want to help the valley learn its history. It gives us a chance to share this with people."

The Battle of Hanging Rock was on June 21, 1864, when Union Gen. David Hunter, withdrawing from a defeat at Lynchburg by Gen. Jubal Early, encountered Confederate forces led by Gen. John McCausland.

According to Sgt. David Greer, a draftsman with a Roanoke consulting and engineering firm, Hunter withdrew after losing nine artillery pieces and continued toward Lewisburg, W.Va. There were 10,000 Federal troops and 1,000 Confederate troops involved. Two Confederate soldiers were killed and from 12 to 20 Union soldiers killed, with 20 taken prisoner, according to the official report by Early. Hunter reported only six artillery pieces captured.

Hanging Rock is the battle site nearest Roanoke.

The two opposing camps will be open Friday evening until midnight. The camps will open at 10 a.m. on Saturday for drills

There will be a wreath laying ceremony at the memorial at the Virginia 419 exit at noon.

The battle will begin Sunday at 1 p.m. and will last about three hours.

The battle will be at the C.B. Huffman farm, part of the original battlefield, at Virginia 419 and Loch Haven Road. Take exit 41 off the interstate to get to Loch Haven Road. Signs for parking will be posted.

Jeff Euchler is a graduate of Lord Botetourt High School and will attend Roanoke College this fall.

At subsequent meetings, Mr. Frances Meeks was requested to have the ground cleared for the cemetery. "Johnny Reb" was the subject of the lecture by Col Farrar. Major McLean entertained Col. Farrar during his stay at the Court House and Mr. John W. Webb furnished the necessary transportation to and from the depot.

The coffins for the bodies of the soldiers, buried in the cemetery, were made by persons employed for that purpose with a part of the lumber being contributed. The reinterment of the bodies took place on the 1st day of December, 1866, at which time an address was made by L. D. Isbell, Eq., and religious services were conducted by Rev. G. W. Leyburn. The following is a list of the names so far as known of the Confederate Soldiers buried in the Cemetery at Appomattox Court House and the order in which they are buried. The graves are numbered from the centre right and left alternately from the head of the graves.

- Grave No. 1 Capt. Miles C. Macon, Fayette Artillery Va.

at level of architectural integrity

● The Home for Confederate Women, Richmond — The building, based on James Hoban's design for the White House, is a fine example of Federal revival style. Chartered in 1898, the home was established to care for the widows, wives, daughters and female descendants of loyal Confederate soldiers. The present building was completed in 1932.

AWARDED CROSS OF MILITARY SERVICE: Kenneth Armistead Roach was recently awarded the Cross of Military Service by the Lunenburg Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Mrs. Wesley Cheeley, President, and Mrs. Elizabeth Stancil, Recorder of Crosses, made the presentation. Also pictured are Mrs. Lottie Roach and Mrs. Marquerite Roach.

GOOBER PEAS

Sitting by the roadside on a summer day,
Chating with my messmates, passing time away.
Lying in the shadow underneath the trees,
Goodness! how delicious, eating goober peas!--Chorus

Just before the battle the General hears a row, He says , "The Yanks are coming, I hear their rifles now" He turns around in wonder and what do you think he sees? The Georgia Militia eating goober peas!
