

Appointed State C. A. R. President

MRS. WILLIAM F. GENHEIMER, of Roanoke, above, has been appointed State president of the Children of the American Revolution by Mrs. John Morrison Kerr, of Washington, president-general of the national society, Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Genheimer, who organized the Mill Mountain chapter, C. A. R., is its senior president.

D. A. R. Chapter Hears Dr. Larue

Speaking here yesterday afternoon before the Margaret Lynn Lewis chapter of the D. A. R., Dr. Gillie Larue, head of the mathematics department of Randolph - Macon Woman's college, who took as her subject, "The American Home," stressed the need today of a home where quiet, confidence and sympathy exist, mingled with humor and understanding.

At the meeting, held at the home of Mrs. William K. Davis, it was announced by the chairman of the Good Citizenship pilgrimage, Miss Sallie Lovelace, that Frances Rosebro, a senior at Jefferson High school had been selected as the girl who qualified in dependability, service, leadership, and patriotism. Her name will be sent to the State D. A. R. society, where one girl will be chosen to go from Virginia to Washington during the time of the Continental Congress in April.

A contribution was noted to be sent toward the restoration of the ball room of Godsby's Tavern in Alexandria.

Miss Mary Campbell was voted into the membership of the chapter. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Robert Cochran, regent. Mrs. W. D. Hall assisted Mrs. Davis, the hostess, in serving the members.

Twice Reprinted

"The Commonplace Book of Margaret Lynn Lewis" has been reprinted at least twice in pamphlet form, once by Andrew Price (Times Book Company, Marlinton, W. Va., no date), with a glowing introduction, and more recently by H. E. Van Gelder (Times-Register, Salem, Va., 1940). Mr. Van Gelder characterized the story as "a very good short historical novel . . . or . . . if you will . . . one of the cleverest pieces of forgery I know of." Mr. Price, on the other hand, leaped with agility over all historical and family in-

D. A. R. To Offer Trip To Capital

Senior Girl Will Be Sent To Washington In April

In an attempt to impress seriously the influence of the National society, D. A. R., upon the women of tomorrow, this organization annually offers a trip to Washington to one public senior high school girl from each state. This girl will be the guest of the society with all expenses paid from Friday, April 14, to Tuesday, April 18.

The trip is given to encourage a greater appreciation of true Americanism, and the program for the days spent in the capital city will have as its theme, the inspiration of the girls with clever ideas of leadership and the impression upon them of the real meaning of American citizenship.

American Revolution; Mrs. John Morrison Kerr, national president, C. A. R., and Mrs. Thaddeus Jones, C. A. R. national treasurer. The latter three are from Washington.

TO DISCUSS PLANTATION

Mrs. W. E. Burnett Jr., member-at-large, Margaret Lynn Lewis Chapter of Daughters of American Revolution, will discuss "Woodlawn Plantation" Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. over station WROV.
