IT ALL STARTS HERE

Focused on the game: senior Ella Bishop cheers on the football team on August 25. The Knights defeated Western Albemarle with a score of 42-3. "I love the atmosphere of the football games. The student section always gets everyone excited and the best part is being with my friends," Bishop said.

Over 700 students bought tickets for the homecoming dance (16, 17). 114 Knights attended Young Life's fall retreat in November (30, 31). Senior Emma Sexton and teacher Kristen Canipe spent 26 combined hours per month managing the school's official social media account (32, 33). 20 cheerleaders attended and competed at states in Richmond (64, 65). Science Olympiad formed a new competitive club that consisted of 16 students and counting (42, 43). And it all happened here.

Eating breakfast. senior Delilah Rodriguez spends time with friends at senior sunrise. Senior sunrise was a tradition started last school year. At the beginning of the year, seniors got together before school to watch the sunrise. The tradition was carried to the end of the school year for a senior sunset at the end of the day to symbolize the start and end of their senior year. "I think it was a fun experience for everyone since we were celebrating being seniors and spending time with our class," Rodriguez said. photo by e. saxton

Rolling the dice. sophomore Tzion Whitaker participates in Dungeons & Dragons club. Whitaker's favorite part of playing Dungeons & Dragons was the dice. "I have three different sets of dice in my backpack right now. I have red, black and clear dice," Whitaker said. photo by e. morris senior Cameron Hagggett helps explain Academic Team as co-captain. The club fair was a new tradition. All the clubs within the school gathered in the gym to promote their club. "My favorite part of Academic Team is definitely going to tournaments," Hagggett said. photo by l. covati

With arms in the air, senior Brandon Noell helps lead the student section at the first home football game of the season. On August 25, the Knights beat Western Albemarle 42-3. Noell showed his school spirit by covering himself in paint. "There's not been a single game where there hasn't been paint all over my body," Noell said. photo by s. manica

Immersed in the crowd, freshman Jason Shilling watches his first pep rally as a high school student. On September 22, students and faculty gathered in the gym to build excitement for the homecoming football game. Not knowing what to expect, Shilling was surprised by the atmosphere. Former Cave Spring student and NFL Hall of Fame Inductee Ronde Barber was invited to the pep rally and game to be recognized for his achievements. In addition, Barber gave a speech to kick off the pep rally. "It was cool hearing him talk about his experience at Cave Spring," Shilling said. photo by a. sweaney

Breaking through a banner, seniors Samantha Manico, Sophie Mills, and Isabella Cavicchio get ready for their senior powderpuff game. On September 20, the girls played flag football while the boys cheered them on. "Participating in these types of events is important because it helps us build strong connections with our peers and creates a sense of community within our school," Mills said. design by s. manico and l. swanson photo by a. hayden copy by l. swanson

take on the WORLD

Six countries, six summer adventures

CANADA [TORONTO]

From July to August, sophomore Sarah Schallon and senior Erin Schallon went to Toronto. One place they visited was Hershey Park, where they went on roller coasters. After Hershey Park, they traveled to Buffalo, where they had Buffalo wings. In Toronto, the Schallon family saw old churches, rode a ferry to the Virgin Islands and rode bikes. "At first it was weird, hearing their accents. I felt like a complete tourist... well I guess I was," Schallon said.

USA [NASHVILLE]

Sophomore Alijah Reeves took a trip to Nashville, Tennessee with her family to see Taylor Swift in concert on May 7. They stayed for a weekend and the car ride was eight hours long. While at the concert, she got a t-shirt as a souvenir. Reeves knew all the songs performed at the concert and her favorite song was "All Too Well (10 Minute Version)." "My surprise song was 'Would've, Could've, Should've' and it made me cry when it played," Reeves said.

COSTA RICA [SAN JOSE]

Freshman Aliza Schopf visited Costa Rica with her parents and brother for the first time. She stayed almost two weeks and visited multiple locations. She got to visit jungles, where she saw exotic animals and hot springs. Schopf was originally going to go to Costa Rica in 2020, but the trip was postponed due to Covid. "The people were very welcoming, and they enjoyed talking about where they live," Schopf said.

SPAIN [MADRID]

Rian (11) and Rishi Patel (9) went to Barcelona, Madrid and Malaga over the summer. They went with their family for eight days. The Patel family visited Sagrada Familia and Park Guell because they were popular attractions. They also visited beaches while they were there. "My favorite part of the trip was visiting Malaga and the beaches," Patel said.

[PARIS]

Junior Julie Danco went to Paris, France with her family this summer for one week. She visited the Louvre Museum, the Eiffel Tower and Disney Land. Some differences Danco noticed between America and France were that the architecture is older in Paris and that people walked slower. "I've always wanted to go to France and finally convinced my mom," Danco said.

[ANDHRA PRADESH]

Anvita Panchumarthy (11) went to India this past summer. First she went to Andhra Pradesh in southern India. She visited villages and Vijayawada, which is the city her parents are from. For a week, Panchumarthy visited Rajasthan in northern India. While she was there, she went to Jaipur, where she visited famous old castles. Panchumarthy has been to India three times. "India has so many languages that when we went to northern India I couldn't communicate with anyone," Panchumarthy said. design by m

IT'S ALL <sup>in the</sup> COMMUNITY

Number of teams
Lonker leads

Preston Lonker is a leader not only in school, but in his family, teams and community

Long before he was the 64th Knight, senior Preston Lonker was a leader among his siblings, the wrestling team and the varsity football team.

"I hope to represent the school and everyone in it, so when people hear 'the Knight' they think not of me, but [of] all of Cave Spring," Lonker said.

Lonker embodied the characteristics of a Knight before he was knighted by valuing safety, respect and responsibility.

"If you respect me, I respect you— even if it's just saying hi or having a small conversation," Lonker said.

With three younger brothers, Lonker was born into a leadership role. His parents impressed upon him that family is like a team— the parents are the coaches and as the oldest of his brothers in seventh, ninth and tenth grade, he was expected to be captain.

"They were always my biggest supporters through any sport I played. They were always there for me, and I will always love them for that," Lonker said.

Throughout Lonker's high school football career, he was coached by three different head coaches. This made it difficult to feel a sense of community within the team, but Lonker had plenty of experience bringing people together.

"When COVID hit, we would hold whiffle ball tournaments and kickball tournaments in our neighborhood. I think it went a long way for those families who we don't know their situation or how this is affecting them. It brought us closer as brothers," Lonker said.

Lonker's kindness and genuine attitude expanded on the Knight's traditional role to not only be a figurehead, but someone to look up to during events like trunk or treat, pep rallies, parades and speeches he gave at school.

"Inviting others in, sitting with new people at lunch, talking to different people in classes, showing respect, showing that you care and being kind and polite and willing to do things for others— that can really make or break someone," Lonker said.

IN THE [STANDS]

Leaning over the front of the stands, seniors Abigail McNamara, Taylor Foster, Abigail Harrison, Ella Bishop, Kamryn Jones and Brandon Noell cheer on the football players during the homecoming game on September 22. "I love the student section because it is a place where everyone can come together, cheer for the team and have a good time without really thinking about anything else. My favorite cheer is 'We Can't Hear You' because it always starts tension between the two student sections making the game more exciting," McNamara said. Clapping their hands, seniors Anderson Vannoy, Drew Ermel and Jake McKinney lead the student section at a "Knight Vision" themed football game. "I love having themes for football games because it's another way to bring everyone together," Vannoy said. design by s. rademarco copy by c. tribble photos by t. hopkins and e. yanishak

DOWN TO THE DETAILS

*Themes help to bring the student section
together*

Bringing energy to the game, seniors Daniela Dinsmore and Taylor Foster parade their Styrofoam mascot for the game. "The themes for games add so much to the environment and make things a lot more fun," Dinsmore said. Cheering on the football boys, senior cheer captains Raegan Shively and Catrena Graham show their support. "Cheering at football games has given me some of my favorite memories from high school," Shively said. photos by e. vanishak

Cheering on their peers. seniors Ryan Connelly and Drew Ermel attend one of their last basketball games before they graduate. "It's very different being a senior in the student section because you have to be a leader, you have to create new chants and make sure that the underclassmen will be able to replace you once you leave," Connelly said. Leading the student section. Assistant Principal Chuck Parker helps to hype up the student body during a boys' basketball game. "Having a student section helps the student athletes know that they have support behind them— not just their parents, but their classmates as well. It's just a good thing to have for the culture of the school," Parker said. photos by k. levering

FROM THE tailgate

Seniors continue on the tailgating tradition

Getting excited for the big game. senior Abigail Harrison tailgates with her friends before the first football game of the school year. "Tailgating is such a fun experience that has really made my senior year memorable," Harrison said. Showing off their game day outfits seniors Drew Ermel and Tyler Wright pose for the cameras before the game. "I love to have a place to get to see all my friends before games and get excited for kickoff," Wright said. photos by e. vanshik

switching SIDES

Continuing the tradition, the seniors celebrate another win against the juniors at the annual powderpuff game. After a loss as juniors, the now seniors took back the trophy for the class of 2024. "All of our hard work creating plays and coaching the girls made this victory feel even better," senior Aiden Likens said. Ready for the snap, senior quarterback Sofia Deleon signals to the center to start the play. "Being quarterback made me fill a leadership role within the team and I had to relay the play calls to the team to make sure all my players were aware of everything going on," Deleon said. design by k. horton photos by s. sweaney copy by a. legault

BATTLE OF THE BEST FRIENDS

With ball in hand, senior Samantha Manico competes against junior Cassidy Egle. Manico and Egle have been best friends for three years and have always been competitive with each other. "I loved being able to play against Cass and see how well our team worked together," Manico said. Manico scored three of the four touchdowns for the senior class. Dodging her opponent, junior Cassidy Egle runs toward the end zone. Egle scored both of the touchdowns for the junior class. "I think everyone on our team played a key role and I couldn't have done it without them," Egle said. photos by s. sweaney

PLAYING the field

Shouting from the sidelines, seniors Reece Tibey and Johan Serrano Murillo work with the other senior powderpuff coaches to lead the team to a victory. The coaches hosted practices for the team once a week in the weeks leading up to powderpuff. "Ever since the first practice, everyone got along with each other and we never had any conflicts with the coaches or players. It was fun getting to spend time with our friends," Serrano Murillo said. photo by s. sweeney

Amidst his fellow band members, freshman Nicholas Freeman watches the powderpuff game. Band members had the option to switch instruments with one of their friends during the game. Freeman switched from the trombone to the trumpet during the game. "It took me some time to figure out. It was definitely an adjustment, but it was fun," Freeman said. In the stands, junior Elijah Bills and senior William Drake perform at powderpuff. Drake typically plays the baritone but for powderpuff he played the trumpet and trombone. "Playing the trombone and trumpet was a fun challenge for me because they are both completely different playing styles," Drake said. Keeping the beat, freshman James Lankford plays one of the stand tunes they have prepared for the football games. "We do switch instruments and we clean the heck out of all the mouth pieces because the time of the game is when everyone gets sick. I switch instruments but since I'm in drumline, everyone likes to switch to the drums. I'm usually teaching someone," Lankford said. photos by s. sweeney

GETTING dizzy

Launching through the air, senior Brandon Noell completes a back flip. Throughout the powderpuff game, Noell did a total of 31 back flips. Leading up to the game, senior Catrena Graham's dad taught Noell how to do a variety of different flips. "My favorite part about powderpuff was the practices because I learned how to do many different types of flips," Noell said. photo by s. sweeney

HOMECOMING

Throwing out candy to the crowd, juniors Precilia Kinsley and Lauren Hoffman represent their grade on the junior class float. Each class hosted a homecoming parade float with its own unique theme selected by members of the student council for each grade. The juniors selected a "Jukebox Junior" theme. "I enjoyed seeing the smiles on the little kids faces when I tossed candy at them," Kinsley said. photo by a. giannini

show your SPIRIT

Students and teachers dress up for spirit week

Showing off their togas, seniors Mitchell Keller, John Chick, Kalek Wagner, Matthew Bradley and Borna Bakhit participate in Toga Day, one of the senior themes for homecoming week. "The process of putting on my toga was long, since my mom kept adding more and more to the outfit," Bakhit said. photo by b. garcia

the night away

Leading the parade, Nathan Bulla (10) and Evelyn Anderson (12) of the marching band take part in the homecoming parade on September 22. The band, along with various other student groups, such as homecoming court and teams, showed up and followed through with the homecoming tradition.

"Homecoming is a big week for us, especially because of our role in the parade. It's a really cool thing to be a part of," Bulla said. From under a surfboard, sophomore Grace Kielty represents her class in the homecoming parade. The parade brought together students, parents and members of the community. "I decided to be a part of the sophomore class float because I think it's really important to involve yourself in school activities during high school. You only get one high school experience, so you might as well make it count," Kielty said.

Gathering on the dance floor, seniors Siena Iademarco, Brandon Noell and Ryan Connelly spend their Saturday night at the reinstated homecoming dance on September 23. The dance was the second semi-formal homecoming dance after over a decade of informal homecomings. "The dance was a really fun experience, especially as it was my last one in high school. My favorite part of the dance was the dance floor, that was a lot of fun. The music was great, as well as the environment," Connelly said. Ready for their pictures, junior Bentley Brandetsas and senior Ronald Gromada get their photos taken in preparation for the homecoming dance, a common tradition amongst students. "My favorite part of the dance was taking pictures, before the dance and during. There was a really cute place to take pictures at the dance. I love homecoming so much, because I am able to dress up and go out with my friends and boyfriend and just have a good time with the people around me," Brandetsas said. Holding their bouquets, seniors Lilly Swanson, Emma Sexton, Ella Bishop, Abigail Harrison, Kamryn Jones, Sarah Crawford and Laine Bennett get ready for their last homecoming dance. "I normally hate homecoming but it was fun this year. My group was really good about making it fun since it was our last year," Swanson said. photos submitted

With arms at the ready, the math department participates in sports day during homecoming week. Ryan Mason, the newest addition to the math department, shared his thoughts on the theme, "The idea came from the movie 'Dodgeball.' Mrs. Shilling is the department chair so she came up with the idea. I usually don't dress up, but I like being part of the math teacher group," Mason said. photo submitted

Smiling in their gear, senior Skyler Ingle and juniors Holly Draper, Lauren Newbold and Brooke Majors are dressed to show their school spirit. "I am wearing my brother's old Cave Spring football jersey. I enjoyed spirit week because I got to see how much effort people put into their different outfits for each theme day," Draper said. photo by t. hopkins

*Number of songs
One Eye Open has written*

One Eye Open formed as a band last year at homecoming. Owen Sinozich (11) played the drums, Landon Bishop (11) sang and played the guitar and Mason Razvillas (10) played the bass.

Sinozich and Bishop started playing their instruments around the same time in September 2022. Razvillas started playing bass in January 2023.

Each band member had their own musical influences. Razvillas cited Victor Wooten and Chris Novoselic. Bishop was influenced by Nirvana, and Sinozich was influenced by Dave Grohl.

The band name and most of the lyrics originated from Bishop. The band has created 37 songs so far. Razvillas wrote all the bass riffs and Sinozich came up with the parts for the drums. It was ultimately a collaborative effort.

The band practiced three to four times per week, but practiced more in the summer. They held rehearsals at Sinozich's house. "My dad used to be in a legit band for twenty years. We practice in his studio. It doesn't have walls or anything, but that's where we play," Sinozich said.

For now, One Eye Open has not made an album. "We've been trying to [make an album] for a while, but the quality of my dad's studio is just terrible, and it takes a lot of money to produce an album," Sinozich said. Despite this,

"We want to keep the band together as long as possible."

- Owen Sinozich , 11

they had plans to drop a few singles.

There were some challenges being in the music industry that as high school students. "As seventeen-year-olds, it's hard to get gigs because you have to be twenty-one to get into venues," Razvillas said. Their solution to this was performing at festival parks.

One Eye Open has performed live three times. They started selling merchandise like shirts and wristbands at these gigs, with plans to expand later.

Each song they created had a different meaning. "Most of them are just stories. Some of them are just like actual stuff that everyone deals with, but most of it just helps to get our emotions out," Bishop said.

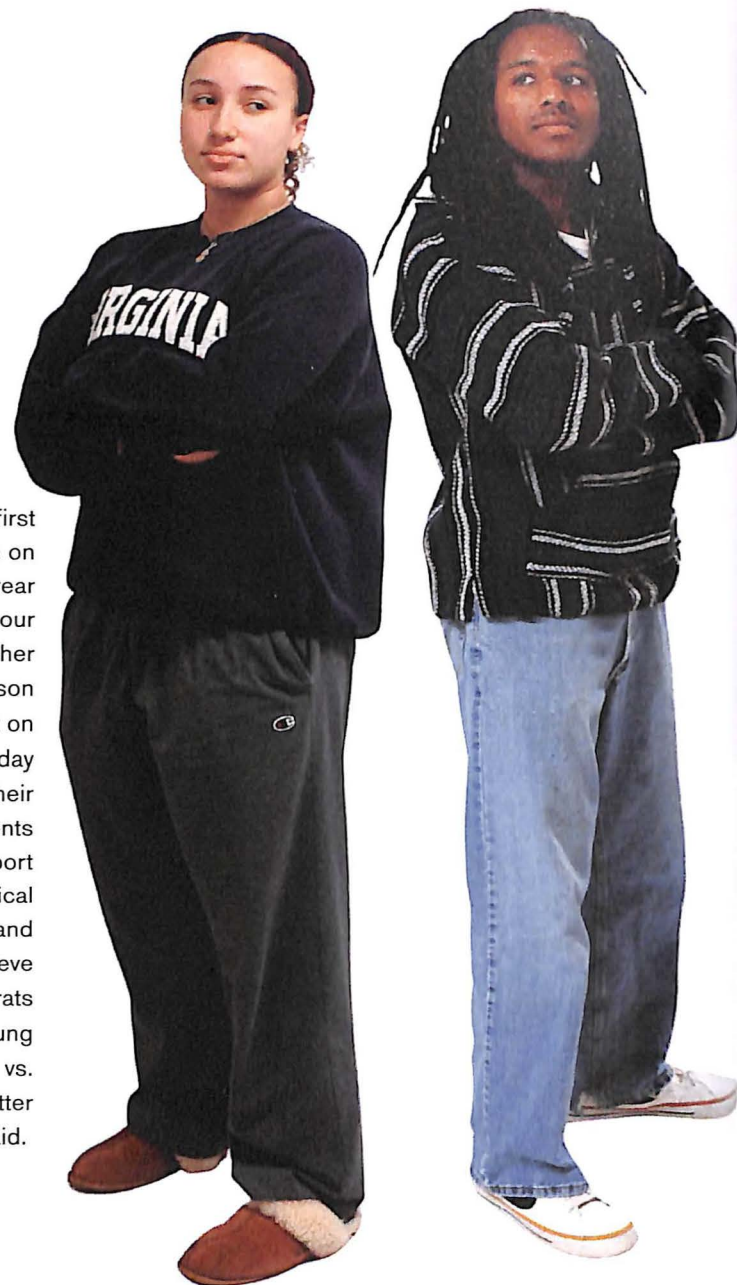

They all agreed that this band has brought them closer together, both as bandmates and as friends. "We want to keep the band together as long as possible," Sinozich said.

Seniors India Cox and Isaiah Swanson voted for the first time in the presidential primary election on Tuesday, March 5. "As seniors this is our first year voting. I think it's very important to exercise our rights because we're given them and other countries don't have the right to vote," Swanson said. Both seniors' families had a large impact on their political beliefs. "I watch the news every day with my grandparents and they share a lot of their input with me," Swanson said. "My parents influence my opinion, but they also support whatever I believe in," Cox said. Cox's political beliefs most closely align with democrats and Swanson describes his as "left-leaning." "I believe our future rests in young people and democrats and liberals especially take opinions from young people," Cox said. "Issues like government vs. states rights and gun laws, to me are better handled by democrats," Swanson said.

what is trending Students show off the newest trends

With Stanley Cups together, Brooke Majors (12), Madison Floyd (9), Maggie Simmons (11), Macy Holthouser (10), Ava Byers (12), and Caitlyn Karnes (10) pose with their trending Stanley cups. The five girls combined own 19 Stanley cups. "I love my cup because it keeps me hydrated and I bring it everywhere with me," Floyd said. At the water fountain, sophomore Anushka Mukherjee fills up her Stanley cup. With the increasing popularity of the Stanley cup, Mukherjee waited multiple weeks for a specific color to come back in stock. "It's way easier to carry around than my other water bottles," Mukherjee said. With ugg's in line, students show off their Ugg slippers and Ugg boots. In recent years Uggs have made a comeback in popularity. "I was influence to buy my Uggs because they were trending, but they are also super comfortable," junior McKenna Yearsley said. photos and copy by: manico

PRIMED and ready

Students prepare to participate in their first presidential primary

Seniors Ryan Scott and Laine Bennett prepared to vote for the first time in the presidential primary election on Tuesday, March 5. Both seniors touched on the importance of voting in primaries. "I think this election is one of the most important primaries of them all. I think it's more important than the general election because Donald Trump and Joe Biden have already been the candidates, so the primary allows an opportunity to see new faces," Scott said. "I think it's definitely important to vote in primaries. I think some people find it exciting and some people view it as a sure thing," Bennett said. Both seniors are impacted by their families' political views. "My family is important, and I think their values pretty much reflect mine," Scott said. "I definitely vote on the republican side and my family is a place where I have gotten the majority of political views from," Bennett said. Scott and Bennett describe what attributes they are looking for in a candidate. "Someone who is going to provide for our country a lot better than in the past," Bennet said. "I will be voting for Nikki Hailey, because she is the younger candidate and she is able connect with the people more," Scott said.

IT'S ALL IN THE BRAIN POWER

The top four players on the academic team were selected to participate in a game show hosted in Richmond, Virginia, "Battle of the Brains." The academic-based show is played in rounds in which the team wins in order to advance. As the team's captain, senior Cameron Haggett takes the lead of the team. "I am responsible for picking what category we take and providing all the answers to the host. It's a lot of pressure because it's time-sensitive," Haggett said. Each member on the team is responsible for a certain subject. Senior Carson Ray specializes in science. "I'm big on science, any kind of science, physics, chemistry, especially astronomy. The Battle of the Brains questions are more geared towards science, history and pop culture so I really play well in Battle of the Brains. In the regular season the questions are more balanced with more literature and other subjects," Ray said.

"We get to be on TV which is crazy."
CAMERON HAGGETT, 12

"No matter whether we win or lose, it's rewarding being able to spend a few hours with my friends and get that fellowship."
CARSON RAY, 12

"The team work is the most amazing part about it, you get really close with the people on the team."

Clearing a hurdle. junior Hallie Dunstan prepares for her next competition. For the past seven years, Hallie Dunstan has ridden horses that her and her aunt own. Her horse named Tiffany was located at Healing Strides Virginia, where they work with therapeutic rides. Dunstan rode in four shows a year to qualify for nationals as part of the athletic equestrian league.

"Horseback riding is a big part of my life. I'm there almost everyday after school. It takes up a lot of my time," Dunstan said. Lining up his shot, sophomore Levin Santhosh practices his photography skills. Only a few years ago, Santhosh stumbled into photography when he was gifted a camera for Christmas. His muse was the still life of the natural world. Santhosh built friendships and skills with each new camera and photography experience. One of his best friends helped him edit all of his photos in Adobe Lightroom. "Atlanta was probably my favorite place to take pictures. ## SEEDS AND SPORES

Growing in the artificial light of a basement. junior Noah Wright brings microgreens, mushrooms and fungi to life. Wright grew a wide variety of mushrooms and fungi and spent multiple months cultivating just one kind. "I would love to continue growing mushrooms when I have more money and more space," Wright said. Some of the mushrooms were edible and others had a strong aroma which kept them locked in the basement. Wright even cooked some of the mushrooms and microgreens that he has grown. photos submitted

Standing by his car, freshman Miles Holland works on his most recent project. For most of his life, Holland has worked on cars with the help of his father. Projects could span from a single day to six months until they were complete. He accumulated two of his own cars with his Jeep being his personal favorite. "I mostly work on race cars during my Motorsports Technology classes at Burton," Holland said.

PUTTING IN WORK

Hanging out with Santa, junior Kayleigh Levering finishes up a shift as Santa's helper. Levering spent her days taking photos of families and kids with Santa. "My favorite part was the conversations I would have with Santa and the kids. You'd be surprised by the amount of kids running up to Santa to give him gifts and big hugs," Levering said. Cooking up some food, senior Cameron Haggett feeds the Salem Red Sox fans in the baseball stadium's kitchen. As a part of the catering team, Haggett worked shifts between eight to twelve hours. "I have a lot of cooking experience, and I love baseball, so it was just the perfect fit," Haggett said. photos submitted used by those of high school and middle school age, TikTok provided the platform he was searching for.

To share his faith, he shared his favorite Bible verse, James 4:3, "Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you."

Kupidlovsky began truly finding love for his faith during Young Life.

"Other than my mom, Landon Dermott, my Young Life leader, was a big inspiration for me," Kupidlovsky said.

For Kupidlovsky, Young Life was about connections with friends and sharing faith with those closest to you.

Kupidlovsky spent much of his free time in worship and listening to Mac Miller. "Mac Miller is one my favorite human beings," Kupidlovsky said. He tries to live by one of his more famous quotes: "Life ain't life til you live it."

Kupidlovsky continued to post content for his 255 followers to learn more about religion. He has accumulated over 7,281 views on his five TikTok videos and experienced continued growth each day.

Waffle House is a go-to hangout after any late night event. "After a Friday night football game is the best time to go," freshman Amelia Stoner said. Waffle House is open 24 hours, which makes it a top pick. "The staff there are super cool, and it's always open," freshman Chase Janney said.

AMC Theater provided entertainment for many students. With its ten auditoriums, there were a variety of films to choose from at each visit. "My go-to snack is the popcorn, and I like going to trendy movies, like the Taylor Swift Eras Tour," senior Beatrice Garcia said. AMC often hosted special events and fan favorite films. "I just moved here, and my friend Scottie invited me to a movie. We went all out and dressed up," freshman Lila Gorby said.

Elmwood Park, located in downtown Roanoke, held an outdoor amphitheater accommodating around 4,000 guests. "You always see people you know at concerts, and everyone gets involved," senior Sophie Mills said. Elmwood hosted events for every season. "The best time to go is in the winter for the ice skating," junior Lauren Newbold said.

The Roanoke Star was built in 1949 as a symbol for the city of Roanoke. The 100-foot tall Star overlooks the Blue Ridge Mountains and the city. "When I think of Roanoke, I think of the big Star," sophomore Camden Wilson said. "I like to go [to the Star] with my friends, especially at sunset," senior Magnolia Burden said.

Sweet Donkey Coffee House provided a space to socialize. With 15 items on the menu, there was a wide variety of food and drinks to choose from. "I like to support local small businesses. They have fun events like the Gilmore Girls trivia night," senior Elise Grieme said. "Friday nights are the best time to go, because they have things like live music and markets. It always brings a crowd," junior Karly Bardales said.

traditions in the CASTLE

Passing out candy, junior Peyton Sloane participates at cross country's trunk or treat car. "This was my first time doing the trunk or treat and I had a lot of fun seeing everyone's costumes. I also really enjoyed decorating the car because we made all of the decorations by hand," Sloane said. Singing together, junior Mia Hylton and senior Rhianna Loftland participate in karaoke during lunch. "Rhianna and I sang 'Baby' by Justin Bieber. I think it's really important to have school spirit and I'm never afraid to show who I am," Hylton said. Distributing treats, senior Lauren Niday helps organize the cross country car and entertain the kids for the second year in a row. "My favorite part about this tradition was seeing all of the kids happy while getting treats from us," Niday said.

KNIGHTS OF YOUNG LIFE

Linking arms, seniors Michael Witt, Owen Tozier and Joseph Vannoy participate in Young Life's retreat. The camp brought together public schools from around the area every November. "I've been in Young Life since sophomore year and I enjoy that it brings people together and we get to learn about God with our friends," Tozier said. Jumping in the air, junior Connor George plays basketball at fall retreat. "I joined Young Life this year because my friends got me to come. To me, Young Life is a very compassionate community that brings people together," George said.

SCHOOL SPIRIT

Cheering during the pep rally, juniors Connor Wilson and William Underwood cheer during a battle between the Knight and the Blackburg Bruin. "The pep rally got me excited for homecoming and the next quarter of school," Underwood said. Battling for a win, senior Wyatt Smith dresses up as the Blackburg Bruin to fight the Knight, Preston Lonker, in preparation for the homecoming football game. "I liked doing this because it was interactive and a lot of fun," Smith said. Preparing for his race, senior Kent Ray leans on a scooter. "I think pep rallies bring people together and it's a fun way to end the semester. Now that I'm a senior, I want to be a role model and show that it's okay to go out and enjoy the activities within the school," Ray said. photos by k. levering

A RETURNING TRADITION

"I did a blood drive over Christmas break and had a lot of fun with it, so that inspired me to want to do another one. I also knew a lot of high school students would be willing to donate because it's an easy way to get volunteer hours. I'm excited to see the turnout because we have already had a lot of people signed up." photo by e. morris

IT'S ALL IN THE [NEWS]

School journalists and social media experts discuss how they spread the news

Getting his camera ready sophomore Jason Boswell films a segment for the Knightly News during journalism class. "I love journalism because just about anything can happen. You could be filming a segment and you get the most amazing blooper that you get to put in and it's just really fun," Boswell said. Helping with the morning announcements sophomore Reagan Basel and senior Lukas White carry out their journalism tasks. "I decided to do journalism because I just really love making videos and I also want to pursue journalism in college and eventually, a career," White said, "There's a really positive environment in the class which is one of the reasons I love it so much. Mrs. Shawn has helped me with my skills so much throughout my time with her." design by s. iademarco photos by l. covati copy by c. tribble

The senior video is a one-woman project

Capturing her class senior Emma Yanishak works to create the senior video. "At Burton we are in charge of the senior video and since I am already very involved in school events I've taken on the responsibility of the senior video. I probably spend about two hours every single class working on it to make sure that it's perfect for the seniors. It's stressful doing it by myself, but I know that I don't have to rely someone else and I can do it on my own time," Yanishak said. photos by s. manico

Getting his equipment ready, senior John Garlow sets up to film the Knightly News. "My favorite part of the journalism program is that it gives me a chance to work with media every single day. I go to the Burton center for mass communication on the days I'm not doing the journalism program. This allows me to always be improving, iterating and perfecting my craft. It's also nice because there's a super chill environment in journalism. Of course there's still a level of urgency, but we love to have fun too," Garlow said. Collaborating for a segment seniors Beatriz Garcia and Lauren Mather film in the green room for the Knightly News. "My favorite part about journalism is interviewing people. We only have to do it a couple times a month because there's not too many segments, so we can usually get it done in one class. Our most recent segment was one of my favorites. We asked people, 'Who is most likely to...' and interviewed people to get their opinions and it ended up being really cool," Garcia said. photos by I. covati

SPREADING THE NEWS

Knights behind the school social media accounts share their dedication to communication

"Since there is something happening all the time, I would say I spend ten hours a month on running the account. I absolutely love running the social media! My advanced marketing class helps create content. Getting them involved is the goal." photos by I. covati

"I probably spend about 16 hours per month running the account because I have to find the pictures, plan the post and contact people about how the activities went. I like running the social media because it gets me involved in the school and helps me show everyone's school spirit."

LOOKING BACK

A glimpse into highlights from every season

WHERE IT ALL STARTED

On September 22, former Cave Spring football player and NFL Hall of Famer Rondé Barber was invited back to his alma mater the week of homecoming. Barber attended the fall pep rally and spoke to the school. After losing their previous two games, Barber spoke to the football team prior to the homecoming game. "He definitely helped bring a spark to some of my teammates that were down and out of the groove," sophomore football player Cooper Hodson said. Barber also attended the homecoming game to be recognized for his achievements. photos by k. leivering and s. sweeney

ON TOP

On November 24 the competition cheer team placed first in states. After a third-place finish the previous year, the team was determined to come out on top. With ten incoming freshmen, the team was ready for a fresh start. "The bond this year between me and my teammates was different from past years because I feel like I can talk to anyone and go to anyone," junior Emery Weld said, "I feel like that had a big part in us winning states this year." photos submitted

SNOW IS HERE

On January 15, the school had its first snow day in two years. Roanoke received four inches of snow, causing schools to close for two days and have a two-hour delay on the third day. "When I found out there was no school, I was so happy because we haven't had snow days in so long," sophomore Cecilia Alouf said. photos submitted

On February 17, the girls' swim 200 free relay team placed first at states. A month before states, junior Tessa Gorby broke her foot but continued practicing for her team. "It sucked, but I thought of my coach and team, so I did it for them," Gorby said. After winning prelims, the pressure was high to maintain their spot in first. Sophomore Jillian Sylvester Johnson, junior Tessa Gorby, freshman Alexis Schaaf and senior Zoey Lusk swam a group time of 1:37.47 seconds. "It was really exciting because this is my first year at Cave Spring and I was happy for Zoey Lusk because she got to win states as a senior," Gorby said. photos by s. sweeney and submitted

Playing the flute, sophomore Kaylin Dalton keeps on beat with the rest of her classmates. Dalton has been in band since middle school and enjoyed the welcoming but also challenging atmosphere the class brings. "Band takes a lot more thought process with reading notes, keeping on tempo and being able to read ahead of what you're playing," Dalton said. photo by e. morris

Shaking hands, junior Aidyn Alexander is congratulated on stage by National English Honor Society president Samantha Manico (12). During their induction ceremony on November 20, new members were inducted into the honor society based off of their successes in the English arts. "It was a big honor and a really cool experience to be able to do a lot of community stuff," Alexander said. design by s. manico and t. swanson photo by j. manico copy by lewanson

*Number of academic competitions
Picard has participated in this year*

Jeanne Picard shares how she manages her academics

A day in the life of sophomore Jeanne Picard would be a packed schedule: Governor's School, Academic Team and Debate occupy her days. Just this year she has been in a total of 12 different academic competitions.

In Governor's School, Picard took precalculus, chemistry and engineering. Much like college, Governor's School required testing, essays and teacher recommendations to gain entrance. It provided in-depth classes and more time to focus on personal interests and projects. "For my science fair this year, I built a handwriting robotic arm," Picard said.

As a member of both the Academic and Debate teams, Picard continued to build her resume at a young age. Academic Team tournaments were all about teamwork and understanding a wide variety of topics. With a few wins under her belt, Picard planned to continue attending tournaments and supporting her team.

In Debate, Picard participated in the Lincoln-Douglas debates, which is a style of debate that emphasizes moral values. She was a teacher and a student, consistently learning about new topics and helping others to write their arguments. "They're interesting topics too, they're usually about the Middle East, health care and other similar stuff," Picard said.

With so much on her plate, Picard took advantage of every free moment to stay on top of assignments. "You just have to get it done. There's plenty of time when you take advantage of it," Picard said.

Picard shared how she coped with stress while juggling Debate, Gov. School and Academic Team. "I do stress sometimes. Gov. School has some resources for that. They have a counselor there, she is really nice. We do yoga together. I usually try to get my confidence up before a Debate competition. I read over my cases, talk to other people and try to relax," Picard said.

creating CONNECTIONS

New friendships are formed in Buddies Club and Help Save the Next Girl

Plating their food. juniors Skylar Uherick, Presley McClellan and Ranah Hassan participate at the annual Help Save the Next Girl Halloween bake-off. Each member was invited to bring in a baked item decorated with a Halloween theme for the opportunity to win a trophy. Faculty members judged the treats based off taste and presentation. Uherick has been a member of the club since eighth grade and joined because she loves the idea behind the club and what they do. "I enjoy Help Save the Next Girl because you get to make new friends and everybody is always so kind," Uherick said. design by m. dinakin and e. sciullo. photo by e. morris. copy by m. meka

BRANCHING out

Buddies Club and Help Save the Next Girl members reach out to their community

Passing out candy junior Jaycee Mills participates in Trunk or Treat for Help Save the Next Girl. The theme for their trunk was Candy Land. Mills helped set up the trunk and pass out candy to all the kids. Her favorite thing about Help Save the Next Girl club is gathering with kind people. "I think that it's really good that there is a club that girls can join where we can just come together and support each other," Mills said.

COMMITTED to the club

Members share how many years they have given to their club

Singing around a microphone. sophomores Alexa Carter, Kyrstin Bratcher Davis, Ainsley Moseley and Megan Miles participate in the Buddies Club karaoke event. Buddies Club encouraged engaging with everyone in the school. They hosted parties at meetings to make sure everyone felt included. "[My favorite song to sing was] 'Baby' by Justin Bieber" Carter said. Cheering on the team. sophomore Ainsley Moseley helps with the Special Olympics. Special Olympics was an event where several different schools came together to have a field day. There were events like running and shot put. At the end of the events, everyone received a medal. Moseley contributed by holding onto belongings, helping out with races and helping people navigate the event. Moseley joined Buddies Club because her cousin with a disability inspired her to join. "I think that people should join Buddies Club because the members are some of the sweetest people I know and I think people should get the chance to see how amazing everyone is," Moseley said. photos by I covati

Kendall West (11) has been in Help Save The Next Girl for five years. She joined because her cousin knew Morgan Dana Harrington, who was a 20 year old woman who was abducted and murdered in 2009. The club formed in Harrington's honor to teach young women about situational awareness. West's favorite part of the club was talking and socializing with people. One of their social events was a baking competition held before Halloween. "[In the baking competition] I won third most creative, and I made mummy cupcakes," West said.

Kyrstin Bratcher Davis (10) joined Buddies Club this year. Her favorite thing about Buddies Club was the positive energy and how kind people were. Bratcher Davis made a lot of new friends and plans to remain in the club next year. "I joined Buddies Club because I have a cousin that has a learning disability. I don't see her that much, however I feel like it helps me help her, and other people," Bratcher Davis said. photos by M. Harris

Sitting in the library. freshman Ella Skeele, a member of Help Save the Next Girl, makes thank you cards for teachers. The club did this to show appreciation for their teachers and build up the community. Skeele made cards for Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Bills, Ms. Knight and Mr. Hough. "I participate in the club because I like the message it has. My favorite part is seeing a lot of my friends in the club," Skeele said. photos by I covati

IT'S ALL IN THE COLLABORATION

Key Club and Science Olympiad emphasize working together

Building a tower, junior Peyton Sloane along with seniors Elise Grieme and Robert Votta prepare for their Science Olympiad competition at Virginia Tech. Sloane was the president and founding member of the club. Members of the club competed in different events by doing labs or tests to score points. "I wanted people who don't normally do science stuff to learn more about science," Sloane said. design by k. horton photo by s. manico copy by a. legault

IT'S ALL IN THE PLANNING A look into what it takes to run a club

Organizing events, seniors Samantha Manico and Matthew Bradley write down Key Club events for the month. As a Key Club officer, Manico was responsible for finding events for Key Club members to participate in. "I love being a part of Key Club because I get to serve my community, and I get to teach others how they can serve their community too," Manico said. photo by s. manico Smiling as she works on a project, senior Elise Grieme runs a Science Olympiad meeting after school. As vice president, Grieme kept everyone on track to be ready for competitions. "We wanted to create a community for people who love science," Grieme said. photo by e. vanishak

Bagging sandwiches, seniors Samantha Manico and Siena Iademarco volunteer at the Rescue Mission for Key Club. They spent an hour and a half bagging 700 sandwiches to give to those in need. "I really like the Key Club community because we all come together with the common goal of helping others," Iademarco said. Preparing s'mores, freshmen Kaelyn Rogers and Madison Steffen volunteer at the Gingerbread Festival on December 2. "I like volunteering with Madison because its fun to be able to give back to the community with my friend," Rogers said. photos submitted

GIVING BACK

Key Club volunteers for the Salvation Army's Angel Tree program

Checking out at the store, sophomore Madeline Blanton and freshman Caitlin McBroom shop for an Angel Tree kid. The kids were able to make a wish list of things they wanted and needed for their holiday gifts. "I liked that I was able to go shopping for kids during this event because it was more fun than other volunteering events" Blanton said. Pushing her shopping cart, junior Skylar Uherick uses this volunteer event as an opportunity to give back to children in the community. "My favorite event from key club has been preparing meals at the rescue mission. I also love that key club is a county wide club so everyone can get involved" Uherick said. photos submitted

FOCUSING [IN] ON LANGUAGE

Looking at vocabulary, juniors Ella Sciuillo and Julie Danco participate in French IV together. In a normal class, they read their textbooks and wrote down words they were unfamiliar with. Sometimes they went outside for speaking assignments, but most of the time they looked at PowerPoints, then completed an assignment afterward. "I used to really like Paris when I was a kid, so I wanted to learn the language so I could visit," Sciuillo said. Writing index cards, sophomore Maya Thompson and Raine Sydnor prepare to perform a skit in Spanish III. They were instructed to make a story and present it to their class. Thompson's story was about a friend group lying to each other about a party that they were going to. "I take Spanish because I want to be an interpreter as a career in the future," Thompson said. design by s. iademarco photos by e. morris copy by c. tribble and m. metzky

A LOOK [INTO] MONGOLIA

Students discuss their journey navigating a brand new country

"People are a lot more friendly in the US, in Mongolia people don't smile as often and aren't as happy."
ACHBILIG BATBAYAR, 10

"In Mongolia every school has uniforms that everyone has to wear and there is no jewelry or piercings allowed. I like it here because I can express myself."
OCHBILIG BATBAYAR, 10

Presenting to their class, junior Kensington Reynolds and sophomore Rishika Sethumadhavan introduce their Spanish project. "I'm in my third year of Spanish and I took it because it has so many real world applications," Reynolds said, "In all honesty I took a language because I need it to graduate but it has been pretty challenging. The hardest part of learning a second language in my opinion is the words that are just super different from English and also the grammatical structures." Performing for their class, junior Nicholas Renick and sophomores Ayush Pinnamaraju and Anish Suryapeta utilize props in their skit.

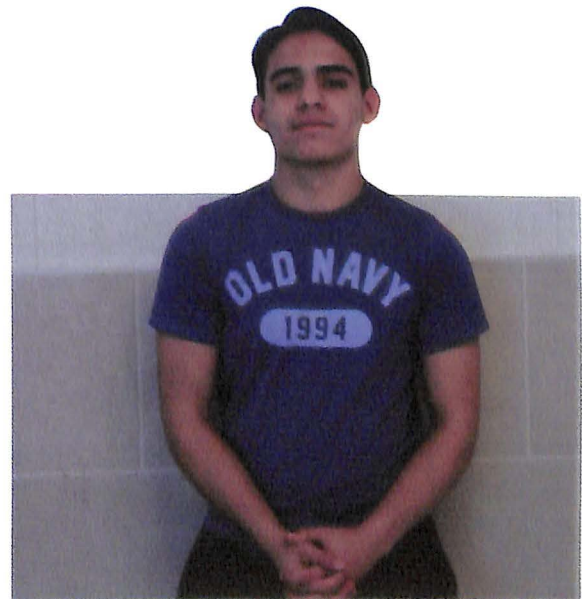

Pinnamaraju's favorite part of Spanish class was completing memorization assignments. He would like to continue into Spanish next year because "it's supposed to look better for my transcripts and college applications," Pinnamaraju said, "[During the skit] it was fun to see all the people doing [the skit] in costumes." Laughing during French class, juniors Brittany Hagee and Rosa Parks Ebacha enjoy the teachings of the French language. Hagee has taken French for four years. "I love taking French because I am really interested in the French culture and I love my teacher Madame J," Hagee said. photos by I. covati

1 STUDENT 2 LANGUAGES

Representing both of his cultures, sophomore Nicholas Hoefner provides insight on his experience being bilingual. "My mom started speaking Spanish to me as soon as I was born. My brother and I both speak it but my dad only speaks a little bit of Spanish. Knowing two languages is extremely important because I just speak Spanish with my mom and also my mom's side of the family just speaks Spanish. I also used to live in New Mexico and there's a very huge part of the population that is Hispanic, so it has been very useful," Hoefner said. photo by I. Hopkins

668 MILES AWAY

Isaiah Swanson prepares to move to the number one business school in the nation

Senior Isaiah Swanson was accepted into University of Chicago, 668 miles away from his home. With the university's 5% acceptance rate, Swanson knew he had to focus on his personal essay to set him apart. "I chose to write about my personal experience growing up [raised by] white grandparents. As a black kid I didn't align with a lot of the culture of other black kids. It was harder to make friends with other black people, and I also had to face a lot of jokes and discrimination because I don't act like a stereotypical black kid," Swanson said. Swanson was looking forward to the new environment and diversity. "I think the city of Chicago will be really nice to move to because it's very vibrant," Swanson said. He planned to major in business with a focus on the managerial side of music production. "I'd like to start a label," Swanson said. photo submitted copy by s. manico

Embarking on a life-changing journey, senior David Jordan and junior Martin Hays prepare to leave for the military once they graduate this year. Martin Hays is only a junior but is graduating early so that he can pursue his dream of being a Navy Seal. "My grandfather was an Army Ranger and he did solo missions in Vietnam. He did a lot of top-secret stuff and that's really what made me want to go into the military," Hays said. "This venture means a lot to him, he even plans on getting a tattoo to represent what he's about to go do," Kristen Canipe, Jordan's teacher, said. photos submitted copy by i. tribble

ENDLESS OPPORTUNITIES

Reading a manual, junior Cameron Noell works as a student in the automotive program at Burton. "The hands-on learning at Burton is more inclusive. People who are visual learners do better," Noell said, "The Burton environment treats the students more like adults instead of teenagers to prepare them for future careers post high school. It's less of a formal environment and more of a workplace." design by i. cox photos submitted copy by b. cavochio

it's all in the [EXPERIENCE]

Burton interns discuss their on the job knowledge

Helping an elementary school student, senior Yarian Colon is assigned to Penn Forest Elementary to complete her teaching internship. "It's honestly a great experience to work with children at Penn Forest because I get to learn and see more about teaching and leading kids," Colon said.

Working on an engineering project, freshman Claire Yanishak prepares for a future job in biomedical engineering. "In this program, I get to design parts online and then make them from different materials," Yanishak said.

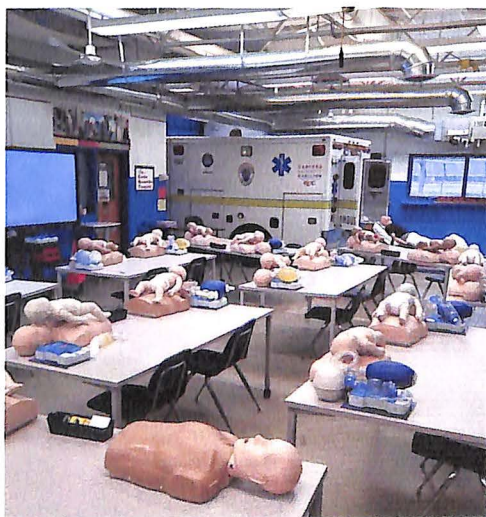

Taking notes, juniors Bryan Parker and Kenneth Walters participate in an engineering lab. Parker is a third year engineering student at BCAT and has taken multiple science and math classes, along with the main engineering class. "We learn about the engineering process as a whole and we learn how to use programs related to engineering," Parker said, "All the programs we use are helpful for everyday life." Using a shovel, sophomore Ethan Richards participates in his building trades class. "Burton is all about finding the trade you like. I build objects with wood, sculpt, do a little bit of masonry, plumbing and electrical work," Richards said.

KEEPING UP WITH [KISH]

The principal of Burton discusses his school

Sitting at his desk, Principal Christian Kish hopes to help each student become opportunity ready and prepare for success in the future. "BCAT is a special place because the students choose to be here with us and are taking classes that are of high interest to them," Kish said. Burton is a specialized school, which combines all five RCPS base schools. Students had to interview for a spot in each individual program. "There are plenty of high quality, work-based, authentic learning activities the students engage in. Students are able to compete in skill competitions at the local, state and national levels. BCAT students are also able to meet students from the other schools across the division in a dynamic and diverse environment that fosters connections, collaboration and personal growth," Kish said.

EXPANDING

EMT

The emergency medical technician program was just one of 26 programs available at Burton. The program differed from normal school classes due to the type of instruction. "We do hands-on activities, like stop the bleed," junior Karly Bardales said. Burton offered connections for volunteer opportunities in EMT, so students could easily jump into their post high school career goals. "Now I have more knowledge for the medical field and emergencies," Bardales said.

take a look at EXPERIMENTS

Science scholars perform experiments to gain a deeper understanding

Focused on her fake wound, senior Kylie Henson uses fake blood, putty and an oil-based makeup pallet to create a wound in anatomy class. "It was fun being at the table with my classmates and being able to create these fake wounds. This lab was cool because we got to see how wounds really look on the body," Henson said. Simulating a burn wound, junior Avery Remines uses a combination of fake skin and makeup to create the wound on her arm. "This lab was much better than other labs we've done because I was able to learn more and it was a lot of fun," Remines said.

NOAH SVIRSKY (11)

Experimenting with makeup. junior Benton Manning imitates a deep wound on his arm. "This was a cool hands-on experience and I really enjoyed playing with the different colors," Manning said. Creating a black eye. senior Abigail Wescott works with different colors of eye shadow to replicate a bruise around her eye. "It was interesting to learn about the difference in colors between bruises and burn wounds," Wescott said.

FLYING FUN

Observing the flying pig. seniors Thomas Loschner and Elizabeth Simkins measure the amount of time it took for the pig to do ten revolutions. "I took this class because I want to be an engineer," Loschner said. Working with his peers. senior Robert Loveless calculates the data needed for the lab. Measuring the radius of the circle the pig is making. senior Isaiah Swanson uses the meter stick to find the radius. Behind the cash register. junior Connor George and sophomores Katelynne Bratcher Davis and Grace Caudill work the morning shift at the Knightly Grind. "The Knightly Grind has been a very fun and tiring experience where I've gotten to meet a lot of new people. It's a good experience for the future because it gives you restaurant and customer service experience," George said. "It can also be a really great place to meet people and a hangout spot for students in the mornings." Cleaning up her work space. junior Lauren Newbold participates in the culinary class's clean up process. "I took culinary because I really like to cook and wanted to do more of it. The environment is nice because you get to pick your groups and choose who you're with, so it's a great time to be with your friends and make new ones as well," Newbold said. design by s. iademarco photos by e. morris and l. covati copy by c. tribble

Sifting the flour. junior Antonio Grogans and freshman Jaylen Wiley bake during culinary arts class. "My favorite things that we make in culinary are pastries and baked goods. I really just like sweet things," Grogans said. Plating their dishes. sophomores Estella Mahgerefteh and Samantha Slocum showcase their cooking skills in class. "I took culinary because of my love for cooking. I think the class is important because we learn how to work together," Mahgerefteh said. Presenting their creations. junior Antonio Grogans and senior Zachary Hodges display their dishes for the school faculty. Gisele Crouse is making a difference as the new leader of Environmental Club

Pounds of plastic collected by Eco Club

After only one year in Eco Club, junior Gisele Crouse knew she had found a new passion. "I wanted to learn more about the environment and actually do something to help," Crouse said.

Crouse wanted to become a leader in Eco Club almost immediately after joining. "After my first year, we didn't do much in the club. I wanted to make sure we took advantage of the resources we have at school," Crouse said.

Part of Crouse's goal of increasing Eco Club's presence involved a focus on recycling. "We started collecting recycling in classrooms for the teachers who have volunteered, and we are doing the Trex Recycling Challenge to see if we can get 1,000 pounds of plastic to recycle," Crouse said.

They also hosted litter clean-ups around the school. "I hope the members get a new sense of responsibility for what they can do for the environment, like learning new things and becoming more aware of things that they weren't aware of before," Crouse said.

Crouse aimed to leave the club more organized and stable after she graduates. She credited her advisers for helping get the club to a new point of stability. "Mrs. Lee and Ms. Burnett both stepped up and really helped with developing ideas and getting the word out about the club. They have also been really helpful in contacting organizations and getting vests for the litter clean-ups," Crouse said.

"I've learned a lot more people care [about the environment] than I initially realized because a lot more people are taking action."

-Gisele Crouse, 11

She also hoped that the club would become more well-known for their efforts so that more people would join. "We are collecting a ton of plastic throughout the school and trying to encourage people to collect plastic that they have at their house. If we get 1,000 pounds of plastic and enter it into the competition, then we will get a bench for the school," Crouse said.

Crouse gained new insight into her peers and community through her involvement in Eco Club. "I've learned a lot more people care [about the environment] than I initially realized because a lot more people are taking action," Crouse said.

Eco Club has even inspired new life plans for Crouse. "Recently, [my interest in the environment] has really picked up since learning more after joining the club. I am thinking about going into environmental science or starting a zero-waste business," Crouse said.

Choir and drama take the stage at the school play and basketball game

Staring into the eyes of Alice, The Madhatter of Alice in Wonderland is played by senior Ava Giannini. With years of experience in theater since elementary school the show reflected the larger than life personality and stage presence of Giannini. "It's a new experience with every show and the excitement pulls me back every time," Giannini said. Completing a complex handshake, sophomore Claire Kelley plays Tweedle Dee with sophomore Maya Thompson as her scene partner Tweedle Dum. "It was very fun, with everyone playing these wacky rolls you really get to dive into it together," Kelley said. Bowing with the rest of the cast, sophomore Olivia Sloan plays the part of the Queen of Hearts. The part was her first ever role in a theater production. "It was stressful being in my first show with only two weeks to prepare," Sloan said.

GOING ALL OUT

Choir students discuss the range of activities they are involved in

Deep in thought, junior Isabella Christensen is a student of both choir and theater. She wanted to become a choir teacher and musical director. "With spring musicals incorporating choir students, it brings out the more difficult songs and brings more people to the productions," Christensen said.

Looking over her part, junior Harley Rose is an alto two for the choir and a part of All-District Choir. "It's not like class, it's a serious commitment. It's pretty fun because you get to work with other kids from the district. I look forward to it every year," Rose said. photos by I. covati

SING IT LOUD

Singing at the basketball game, freshman Randall Landes completes his part as a tenor two in choir. With twenty two students singing at the basketball game, each voice was heard. "It is nerve wracking, but the voices make it all worth it," Landes said. Directing his class, choir teacher Bradley Stump guides his group through the music. "It was good to see the excitement on their faces to sing in front of the student body," Stump said. Leading the chorus, junior Iris Dyer sings with her classmates. # our time is HALFTIME

Playing for the judges, freshman Jack McNeil and senior Jared Hollins perform the Marching Knight's show entitled "Chaos Order" in the Blue Ridge Festival of Bands on October 28. "I picked clarinet because the parts are usually really fun and it has the best range and the keys are cool. I have made so many friends in band and I've done it for so long. It is something that you can work towards and get better at. Seeing my friends every practice and competition is my favorite part of doing band, it is very fun," Hollins said, "Before we perform, my section has a little dance we do every competition. I'm usually pretty nervous before a show, but we know how to prepare a lot for it." design by c. holton and h. draper photo by e. morris copy by c. holton

DRUMMING TO THE BEAT

Marching with his drum, junior Malachi Lee performs at halftime. "Band is a really good community. You get to do so much more than just practice and perform, you get to be a part of that community," Lee said. Out in the pit, freshmen Gage Allran and Ziggfield Bernardo rock out. They served as the stationary element of the marching band. "We just started doing the pit again, but it's a lot of fun. You get to work on a specific piece of music," Allran said. Laughing with a teacher, senior Dominick Ostrander takes in the marching band environment in the rain. # LOUD AND PROUD

On the field, junior Elijah Bills moves into position at the last football game of the season on October 20. "My aunt told me to have fun in high school I should go and do stuff, so I do band," Bills said, "It's a really great community. My sister and I do band together and I've made a lot of friends. The music and the practices are fun. Before a performance when it gets cold, we have to keep blowing warm air into [our instruments] to keep them in tune. I've gotten really into music because of band."

Playing a tune, sophomore Chase Hunter marches on the field at the homecoming game on September 22. "I joined band in middle school because I thought it would be fun learning an instrument and there's so many people in band you can kind of relate to," Hunter said, "Competitions are really fun. Before we go on, I run through the music in my head. I have a lot of fun and it's been so fun making new friends every year." photos by a. hayden

Waving for the camera, junior Connor George gets ready for halftime. George played tuba at each game. "I started playing in fifth grade in a trailer at my old school. I wanted to play an instrument and the tuba was the biggest one they had. I wanted to play it because I was a small kid and it was a big instrument," George said, "Competitions are fun. I like watching the other bands and munching on the concession foods. Band has made me me and I have met a lot of new friends." photo by a. hayden

FLYING colors

Color guard takes the field

Tossing a rifle and waving a flag, senior Paige Walters and sophomore Luciana Covati perform at halftime. The color guard performed using a total of 75 flags throughout the show. "I've been in color guard for three years. I thought color guard looked really cool and it would be good to be involved in," Covati said, "Before every competition, we all get in a circle and we take a pixie stick and we all eat the pixie stick at the same time. After the competition, we have maybe a minute to collect all 75 flags off the field and then we have to take them, put them all in a big pile and distribute them. It's very tedious and it's hard, especially with the amount of flags we have." photos by a. hayden and v. hector

we're [here] to CHEER

The five-time state champion cheerleading program was known for more than just their titles, but also their competition themes. The Knights took on the theme "Fight Knight" for the 2023 season. It was inspired by aiming for a comeback from their 2022 season, where the team broke a nine-year streak of placing first or second in the state when they placed third. "[Fight Knight] was a way to say we're here and fighting our way back to the top," junior Ava Livingston said. "The theme was so good for this year considering what the team went through." The cheer team overcame obstacles such as season-ending injuries and sickness. ## SPIRIT FROM THE [SIDELINES]

different perspective*

With hands together. senior captain Raegan Shively claps to the beat of a cheer. On August 25 the Knights were victorious against the Blacksburg Bruins with a score of 38-7. The theme was Cave Crazyes and the cheerleaders participated with red and black beads. "I enjoy being a part of the atmosphere at football games and dressing up with the student section," Shively said.

from alternate to STATE CHAMPION

After a setback, the cheer team overcomes new challenges

Freshman cheerleader Annabelle Croy stepped up for junior Hannah Conner after a season-ending injury. As an alternate, Croy was expected to know the routine and be able to perform on the mat with short notice. Conner's injury occurred 30 minutes before the end of practice one week prior to the regional competition. Practice was extended by an hour so the team could rework their routine. Along with Croy's new position on the mat, junior Ava Livingston was forced to switch stunt groups. "[Croy] was obviously nervous but she took it like a champ," Livingston said. Despite the team's setback, the routine at regionals went smoothly with no major errors, which allowed them to move on to the state competition. "I felt a lot more confident going into states because regions went smoothly," Croy said. At the state competition, Croy and her team earned first place, making it the program's fifth state championship win. photo by s. sweeney

Cheering for the crowd. junior Brooke Majors hypes up her fellow students during the homecoming pep rally on September 22. The team worked on their routine for the pep rally starting in August. Some responsibilities of the cheerleaders in the pep rally were to lead the crowd and get them excited for what was to come. "I think the pep rally was one of our best performances, so I am very proud of the team," Majors said. photo by s. sweeney

Clapping her hands. sophomore Kami Hallet cheers from the sidelines. Hallet did both sideline and competition cheer. Sideline cheer took place at basketball and football games, so it required less stunting than competition. "I do cheer because it is a fun, motivating sport and it's like having a whole other family," Hallet said.

Taking off from the starting line. senior Thomas Loschner represents the Knights at the 19th annual Knights Crossing Invitational at Green Hill Park in Salem on September 9. Loschner has competed in this meet since freshman year, as the Knights host the event. "I physically feel bad and tired after finishing a race, but if I do good then it makes me glad," Loschner said.

Rounding a corner. senior Mitchell Keller outpaces his opponents at Knights Crossing. "We rely on all the income from Knights Crossing to fund cross country and even track," Keller said, "Our coach is there for a solid week working from 6 am to 9 pm. The volleyball team reaches for new possibilities

Focusing on the ball, sophomore Amelia Vannoy leads the junior varsity team to a winning season. Into the varsity post-season, Vannoy continued to encourage the team as they fought against the William Byrd Terriers and the Christiansburg Blue Demons. "I enjoyed getting to know my teammates and being able to watch us improve as the season continued," Vannoy said. Leaping from the bench, junior Ripley Hunter screams in support for her team. On September 14, the Knights fell short against the Blue Demons of Christiansburg. As a defensive specialist, Hunter rotated from the bench to the court. "It's important to me to keep everyone's spirits up by continuing to cheer and hype up plays even when I'm not on the court," Hunter said. Huddled closely, senior captain Elle Williams speaks to her team before the match. In contrast to previous years, the team had a positive outlook on the season. "There's more belief this year and we are actually being told we can go far, unlike previous years," Williams said. photos by e. yanishak

HERE TO [WIN]

Coach Tamalyn Tanis secured five state championship titles thus far over the course of her coaching career. After losing their coach mid-season, the volleyball team had a role to fill. Coach Tanis stepped up and made her return to coaching in the middle of the 2023 season. With a background of five state championship titles and an appearance in the state tournament seven out of the nine seasons she coached, she strove to push the team for the remainder of their season together and put winning in their realm of possibility. "I like to have competitive practices with a balance of skill work and team work so that on game day, it gives you a snapshot of where you are," Tanis said, "When it's time to flip the switch, I want it switched." photo by e. morris

ON YOUR MARK

*Track athletes

With arm raised, senior Jordan Wetzel celebrates with Coach John Wiggins. Wetzel went into regionals on February 17 ranked fourth and ended up coming in third place with a 19 second personal. "I felt nothing but pure joy and relief after crossing the finish line and knowing I had secured the spot at states I had wanted so badly all season," Wetzel said, "It was so great to share the excitement of state qualifying with Coach Wiggins. Having him cheering and calling out my splits helped me stay focused each of the sixteen laps of the race." design by k. horton photos by s. manico copy by a. legault

Clearing the bar, senior Isabella Cavicchio competes in the pole vaulting event in the regions meet. "This is my first year pole vaulting and I love it. There are a lot of different steps and it's a lot harder than it looks but it's rewarding to get new personal records," Cavicchio said. Vaulting over the bar, senior Jared Hollins competes in his last pole vault meet of the season. Hollins was a member of the track team for six years and enjoyed pole vaulting the most. "I love the competition with yourself and trying to beat your standard times and heights," Hollins said. In air, junior Parker Harman reaches for a new personal record in the pole vault event. "I like pole vault a lot because of the drive to improve and I'm always working to do my best," Harman said.

IT'S ALL IN THE AIR

Pole vaulters discuss their event

Passing the baton to her teammate, senior Gabrielle Holohan finishes her leg in the 4x8 relay race. Placing second in both races, Holohan was a member of the 4x4 and the 4x8 relay teams. "Since we got second place in both races, it qualified us for states which was really exciting. The relays are definitely my favorite because there's a special bond between our team and we all run for each other," Holohan said. In stride, junior Camden Wilson races to finish the 55 meter dash. "My friends and I all play football together so we all have a close bond and they always encourage me during my races. I push myself the hardest to make my parents proud," Wilson said. photos by s manico

DOWN TO THE SECOND

Breaking a school record (twice)

Sprinting around his opponent, junior Jackson Steffen competes in a relay at regionals. Steffen ran a relay and the 300 meter race during the indoor track season, and managed to break the school record two times for the 300. "The people around me help push me to be the best person I am. Breaking the record the first time was surprising and very exciting. Because I was sick when I originally broke the school record, I was expecting myself to do a little better during states, but I was still super nervous until I officially broke it for the second time," Steffen said. photo by s manico

KNIGHTS TAKE ON STATES

With baton in hand, senior Lauren Mather competes in her last indoor track race at states on February 26. "It was sad running my last indoor race but I loved this season because I got to run with so many amazing people," Mather said. With his eyes on the finish line, senior Kameron Gerald helps lead his team to twelfth place in states. "People underestimate the chemistry and timing it takes to execute hand offs in a race as fast and chaotic as the 4x2," Gerald said. Sprinting to the end, freshman Abigail Tozier competes in her first state meet.

Tozier competed in the 4x4 and the 4x2 races. "Running at states was really scary because I had never run before this year. It helps to have supportive teammates that I know I can trust and that they won't be mad if I don't do my best," Tozier said. photos by s manico

As a three-time captain of the varsity lacrosse team, senior Lillian Swanson was within reach of scoring 100 individual goals, while balancing putting her team first.

However, the remaining nine goals were of less concern than her team was. "I'm more of a team player, I don't love to drive the ball all the time. I would much rather pass it to my teammates,"

"My goal for the season is to definitely score 100 goals because that has been a goal of mine

Swanson said.

I've wanted to accomplish since freshman year," Swanson said.

With huge shifts in the team's roster from season to

The milestone of scoring 100 goals is a benchmark for lacrosse players across high school and collegiate levels.

season, Swanson has been forced to alter her style of play. "Where the team is at right now, I think that I need to work on more 1v1s, making more of an effort to score," Swanson said, "I definitely have to play in a way I don't want to play."

Swanson is often recognized on the field as a player with good field vision and smooth movements.

Due to Swanson serving as captain for three years, she has seen the teams evolution first hand. "My freshman year, I only had one assist because I would throw the ball to someone and they just wouldn't catch it, but then junior year I had roughly 20 assists. So, it shows how much we improved as a team," Swanson said.

"Lilly has very graceful movements, she makes lacrosse look easy the way she plays," teammate Emma Sexton (12) said.

Going into her senior season, Swanson had racked up ninety-one goals from her freshman, sophomore and junior seasons.

With hand in the air, junior Davis Henritze earns another win. Henritze came in third place at regionals and wrestled a two seed and one seed at the state tournament. "The thing that drives me to keep wrestling the way I do is that I hate losing. When I'm wrestling, it feels like a flow state. I have to watch back film to remember what I even did," Henritze said.

With hands on wall, sophomore Avery Spurlock finishes the 50 meter freestyle race. Spurlock has been on the school team for two years and has also been on a year around swim team since she was in fourth grade. "My friends are my biggest motivation and it's a lot of fun when we all hype each other up," Spurlock said. Diving into the water, senior Heidi Thompson competes in the 200 meter breaststroke.

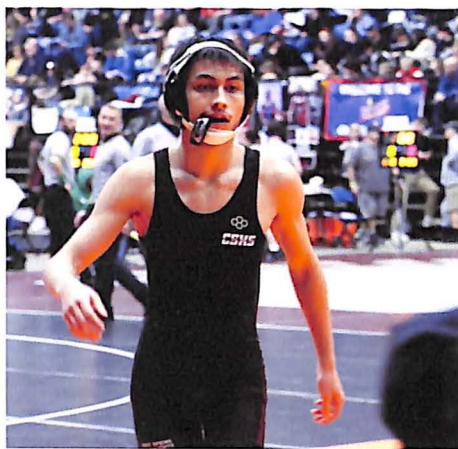

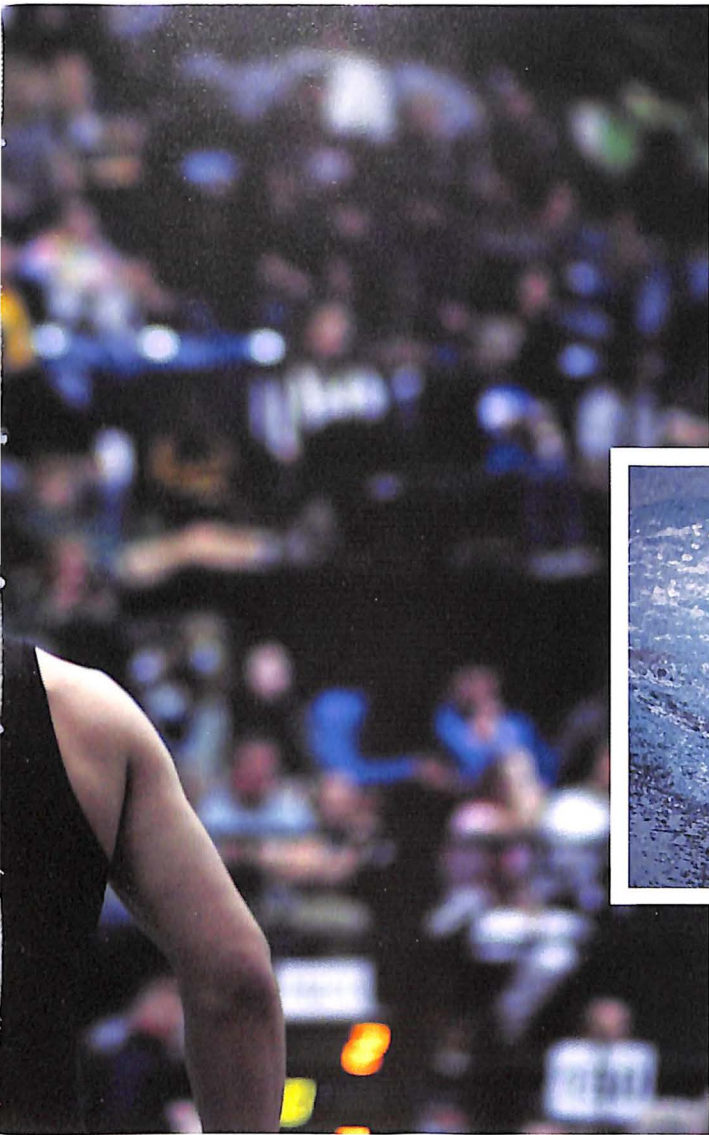

Thompson has been swimming for eight years and loves the sport's competitive nature. "I may not be the fastest person in a race, but I'm always very competitive with myself and try to improve my times at each meet,"

Thompson said. photos by a. hayden

RISE AND GRIND

Competing at states. sophomore Nathaniel Muncy, has been wrestling for three years. His favorite thing about wrestling is the hard work and dedication it takes to be on the team. Muncy has been putting in hard work since his Freshman year to make it to states this year. He finds his motivation from his dad who has helped him since he started wrestling, as well as some of his teammates like Preston Lonker. At regionals he placed fourth and won two matches and lost two matches. "The team atmosphere is like no other. We're basically like brothers and sisters," Muncy said. photo by s. manico

In stroke. freshman Alexis Schaaf competes in the 300 meter butterfly event. She placed in the top eight at states on February 17. Schaaf has been swimming for 11 years with her favorite events being the 100 meter butterfly and 200 meter butterfly. "The atmosphere of high school swim is a lot different from year around swim because its not as scary. I really liked getting to hangout with my school friends during the school season," Schaaf said. photo by a. hayden

ALL FOR THE WIN

Setting up for a late throw. senior Brandon Noell secures his 100th win of his high school career. ## BREAKING RECORDS

235

Conquering the board, junior Madison Coleman has 235 and counting rebounds throughout her season, breaking the school record against the Blacksburg Bruins. "I had to work hard and put in effort in and out of practice. Knowing I was close to the record pushed me a little extra to improve even more in the games and to fight for those extra rebounds," Coleman said.

45

Looking to a score, senior Kameron Tinsley breaks the previous school record of points scored in a game while playing the Blacksburg Bruins by a single basket. The record changed from 43 to 45. "My teammates were the main focus for this, because they got me the ball in the best position for me to score," Tinsley said.

Putting up a threat, senior Charlie Parker made nine three pointers against the Pulaski County Cougars, beating the previous school record of eight three pointers. "It felt good to break it and to know the level of difficulty it takes to break it. It felt even better coming off the court to see all my guys cheering and jumping," Parker said.

COUNT [HIM] IN

Defending in unison. teammates senior Olivia Jones and freshman Scotlyn Leonard take on the Lady Cavaliers of Botetourt County. "We all know each others strengths and weaknesses on the court," Jones said.

Above his opponents. senior Owen Sweeney catches air during his senior night game against Hidden Valley. Sweeney scored 17 points and three dunks. "I think having fun can build confidence and if you're confident you are going to play a lot better," Sweeney said. He made his comeback to basketball after not playing since eighth grade. "I had a lot of persuasion from Coach Gruse and my teammates. I also thought it's my senior year, so why not go out and see if I like it. If I don't I might regret it," Sweeney said.

Sharing a pre-game handshake. junior Mia Hylton and senior India Cox dance out their nerves before starting their senior night game against rival Hidden Valley. The Knights beat the Titans 50-40 on January 12. "The bond that I share with my teammates allows me to trust and rely on them in difficult situations," Cox said.

Protecting the ball. freshman guard Scotlyn Leonard fights for possession against the Salem Spartans. "Being on varsity is a lot faster and is super competitive," Leonard said. Playing up close defense. freshman Amelia Stoner stops the opposing player. "It was intimidating at first, being the youngest, but my older teammates push and support me on and off the court and helped build confidence," Stoner said. Blocking a Spartan's shot. freshman post Ashlyn Braaten learns from older players. Up to bat. sophomore Danica Ogle gets ready for the pitch. "When I'm up to bat I feel at ease. I love batting and even more I love my softball team," Ogle said. Mid pitch. sophomore Abby Poff pitches to her opponent. "I feel a little nervous while pitching, but mostly excited because I know that I can control my pitching," Poff said.

UP TO BAT

Mid swing junior Abigail

Bradberry hits the ball.

Bradberry scored nine runs on March 2 due to her teammates hitting her in. "When I'm in the box, I'm very excited to try and make the defense work to get on base and help my team out," Bradberry said.

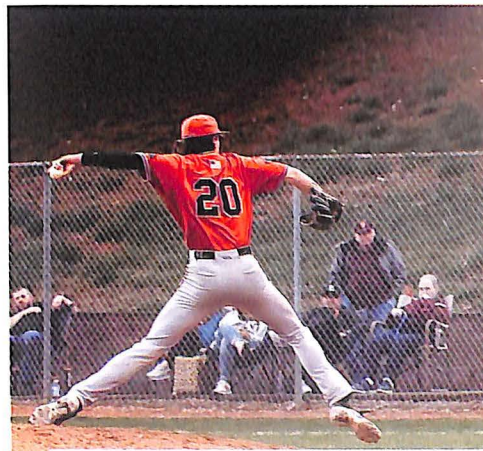

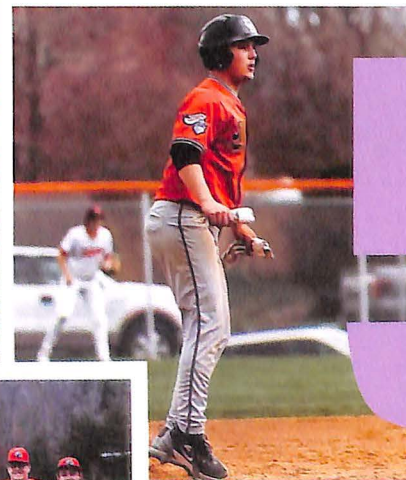

Running between bases, sophomore Caitlyn Karnes plays in a jamboree against the James River Knights and the Tazewell Bulldogs. "It is so fun being on varsity and I love each and every practice and game. They are always the highlight of my day," Karnes said. Swinging the bat, freshman Madison Steffen scores her first home run on varsity. Steffen was the only freshman on varsity and hit a home run in her first game. "Hitting the home run cleared some of my nerves and it made me feel like I belonged on varsity, but it is still a lot of pressure being on varsity," Steffen said.

Pitching to his opponent, senior Owen Sweeney plays against the William Byrd Terriers. As a senior, this was the last time he would play with his teammates. "It's disappointing because I have built a ton of memories with the guys, but I'm glad I got to have it with them and I wouldn't want it any other way," Sweeney said. Stealing third base, senior Victor Skaff and his team play against the William Byrd Terriers. Skaff has been playing with most of the senior class for ten years. "It is sad that I won't be playing with these guys on one team ever again," Skaff said. Alongside their teammates, seniors John Chick, Owen Tozier, Mason Hazelwood, Owen Sweeney, Kyle Cook, Michael Witt, Preston Lonker, Victor Skaff, Kent Ray and Reece Tibey pose for a picture after a game. Tozier has been playing with many of these seniors since he was seven. "The fact that we have played together so long has improved the dynamic and team chemistry," Tozier said. photos by s. sweeney

Number of years the senior baseball boys have been playing together

UP AND COMING

Freshman cheerleader Kinsley Trivett played an important role in helping her competition cheer team win a state championship. Trivett has been cheering since the age of four and has steadily grown since then. She was able to do a full, an advanced tumbling trick, by the age of ten, which is a skill that only a few cheerleaders on her high school team have been able to achieve. When going to her first high school open gym, Trivett felt nervous being one of the youngest there. "My first time at an open gym I was really quiet and barely talked to anyone. Since then, my confidence grew with having the support of my new teammates," Trivett said. design and photo by s.manico copy by l.watson

Freshman basketball player Ashton Cornett was a newcomer on the basketball team. Cornett was the only freshman on the varsity roster, and he also earned playing time on the court. "This is the first time in ten years that I have brought up a freshman to play on varsity," Coach Jacob Gruse said. Going from the middle school level straight to varsity, Cornett had to adapt to the skill level of his competitors. "I went from being in middle school and being the biggest kid on the court to now being the smallest," Cornett said. photo by s. sweeney

ATHLETES

Young athletes set out to prove themselves

Sophomore lacrosse player Anna Smith finished out her freshman season with a 66.7% save percentage. Smith earned a starting spot on the varsity lacrosse team. "I was nervous because I didn't want to let my team down. I worked as hard as I could to make sure my team did well," Smith said. Even as a sophomore, Smith made sure she was a leader on the field. "Talking to your team is important because when you're a goalie, you're a director on the field. You try to direct the defense to do what you need them to do. You see the whole field and they don't," Smith said. Going into her sophomore season, Smith felt the need to prove her capabilities. "I'm feeling pressure this year to prove that I still deserve a starting spot and that I'm better than last year," Smith said. photo by crunch mvp

Sophomore baseball player Ryan Tibey was pulled up to varsity after his junior varsity season as a freshman. "I had a pretty successful JV year, and when I got pulled up to varsity I wasn't expecting to play too much, but I got to get in the game a few times," Tibey said. The advanced level of play pushed Tibey to improve. "I definitely got better because during playoffs I got to practice with all of the varsity players. It was more fast paced. It was a big jump, especially with pitchers and the speeds at which they were throwing," Tibey said. photo by s. zwozney

IT'S ALL on the field

Blocking her opponent, senior defender Isabella Cavicchio competes against the Cavaliers of Jefferson Forest. The senior took up the sport of lacrosse late in her senior year. "Bella is a natural athlete and has come so far with her skills. I don't know what we would do without her grit on defense," teammate Samantha Manico (12) said. Being a multiple sport athlete impacted Cavicchio's view of the sport. "Being on the lacrosse team has giving me a new perspective on athletics as a whole and how important a team atmosphere is," Cavicchio said.

IT'S ALL ABOUT POSSESSION

Players face off to control possession

Ready for the whistle, junior Cassidy Egle prepares to take the draw. Egle had a 55.6 draw control win percentage against Jefferson Forest contributing to the team's 63.6 draw control win percentage. "My teammates motivate me to be the best player I can be and they always hype me up during the game," Egle said. Eyes on the ball, sophomore Mitchell Anderson faces off against his opponent from Hidden Valley. Anderson's role on the team is FOGO, which stands for face off and go. His job is to obtain possession and run off the field. "The whole time you're fighting for the ball and it's basically keep away, so the face off is really important," Anderson said. photo by j. manico copy by s. manico and l. swanson

SIBLING [SUPPORT]

Sibling duo Kendall and Ryder Compton come together through lacrosse

"I like having my brother play the same sport as me, because he knows what's going on so he can actually give good corrections and advice."
KENDALL COMPTON, 9

"I feel our relationship has gotten stronger because we are able to help each other grow through the sport of lacrosse and are able to provide critiques."

With eyes on the goal, senior Kaitlyn Holbrook drives in for a shot. Holbrook scored two goals against the Jefferson Forest Cavaliers. "My favorite part of offense is finding strategies on how to get points on the board," Holbrook said. photo by j manico

MAKING IT COUNT

Driving in, senior Liam Wampler scores a goal. On March 14, Wampler scored four goals against the Hidden Valley Titans. "I think being a senior and leader on the team means setting a positive example and helping younger players. I motivate everyone else and make sure I'm not bringing them down," Wampler said. photos by k

GOING HEAD TO HEAD

Eyes on the ball, senior Samuel Hoefner goes for the header during the Cave Spring Jamboree. Hoefner is a mid-fielder on the varsity team and has been playing all throughout high school. "It's senior year so I'm hoping to make an impact and be an important part of the team," Hoefner said. Watching the defender, junior Benjamin Harvard tries to steal the ball. This was his first year on the varsity team. After the loss against Glenvar, Harvard believed there was room for improvement, "The loss has made me want to work harder during practice and in my free time," Harvard said. design by m. dimakin and e. sciullo photos by a. hayden copy by m. metko

LAST LINE OF DEFENSE

Defensive players share their experience on the soccer pitch

Striking the ball, freshman Charlotte Wright passes the ball to her teammates. Wright was a defender on the varsity team. She started the position three years ago and immediately took an interest in it. "I enjoy working together with my team. It takes a lot of communication and patience, but it's rewarding," Wright said.

BACK ON THE FIELD

Taking the ball, freshman Abigail Tozier has played soccer since she was six years old. Tozier has played center back for four years, but before that she played mid field. She also played for VA United which is a travel team. "[At their first scrimmage] I thought we did well as a team for not having much practice" Tozier said.

Running through the field, freshman Naomi Fetzer has played soccer for her whole life. She used to play defense, but now she plays mid-field. Fetzer continued playing for a travel team in the off season. "This was my first time on varsity, and it has really been a fun experience with the new team," Fetzer said. photos by s. manico

Watching from the bench, freshman Scotlyn Leonard is healing from an injury sustained January 31 at the girls' basketball game at Northside High School. Her doctor originally said that her ankle was fractured, but it turned out to be a sprain. Leonard's doctor told her that the recovery would take a total of four weeks. This put Leonard out for the first twenty-one days of the soccer season. To prepare for her return, she did physical therapy and stretching. "[What I love most about soccer is] the intensity of getting to play and the running," Leonard said, "I am really excited to return to the field and play with my friends." photo by s. manico

Returning the ball, senior Aiden Likens gives it off to the defense. Likens started out as the goalie seven years ago. Initially struggling with ball handling skills, his experience in football led him to excel as a goalie. One of his struggles was positioning himself in the goal. "You could be the best shot stopper in the world but if your position is wrong, you're never going to make a save," Likens said.

Passing the ball, senior Finnegan Boccieri moves the ball up the field. Boccieri played as a defender for the last fourteen years. "As a defender, I have to support the offense but also recognize when I have to drop back," Boccieri said. After starting on varsity for the last two years, Boccieri felt very connected to his defensive teammates, "As defenders we take a lot of pride in keeping a clean sheet," Boccieri said. photos by a

[SWINGING] INTO ACTION

Golf and tennis hit the ground running

Stepping in for the hit junior Nafisah Izzat competes against the Glenver Highlanders in their first match of the season. "We train to be consistent because consistency always wins," Izzat said. By putting the work in at practice, she hoped to defeat the Christanburg Blue Demons and the Blacksburg Bruins this season. photo by i. covati

On the green junior Benjamin Fradette watches the ball inch towards the hole. He planned to continue the sport as a hobby after high school, but didn't plan to play in college. "For my senior year I wanted to keep improving my score. I take golf seriously, but it's also a lot of fun to mess around with my friends," Fradette said. design by i. cox photo by lifetouch copy by b. cavicchio

PUTTING IN WORK

Nate Faulkner's hard work fuels his success

Senior Nate Faulkner was ranked sixth in Virginia golfers for the class of 2024. He was named AJGA Rolex Scholastic Junior All-American and First Team All-District, All-Region and All-State during his final high school season. "It's an honor to be ranked that highly in the state and see my hard work paying off," Faulkner said. He was signed and committed to play Division 1 golf at Davidson College. "Long hours on the range and putting green, spending a lot of time playing in less-than-ideal weather and putting together a strong tournament schedule are some of the key factors that have helped me get my game to where it is today," Faulkner said.

Swinging the club junior Kendall West works on clearing the green at her tournament. She was the only female on the varsity team. "You have to learn to adapt at all the tournaments because you never play against girls. It makes it all seem more competitive and intense," West said. photo by lifetouch Serving the ball, sophomore Hannah Myers competes in both single and double matches against the 2023 state champion Glenvar Highlanders on March 5. The Knights won 9-0. "It feels really good to play and win against a state championship-winning team and I hope to be ranked fourth on the team this season," Myers said. photo by I. covati Eying his target senior Jayson Doolan focuses on sharpening his skills for future opportunities. "After high school, I plan on coaching golf at Lucy Addison, Cave Spring and Faith Christian," Doolan said. photo by lifetouch

A [SET] OF BROTHERS

Brothers Rian and Rishi Patel discuss sharing the court

Swinging the racket and making contact junior Rian Patel mentors his younger brother as he navigates through his freshman season. "I try to act as a role model for him to help push him to get better," Patel said, "We grew up practicing together and always wanted to end up playing together."

Swinging the racket freshman Rishi Patel focuses on winning his match. "I'm seen as the underdog for the team, so I hope to win as many matches as I can," Patel said, "I'm eventually trying to get better than [Rian] and when we play together, I try to mimic what he does." photos by I. Hopkins

IT'S ALL <sup>in the</sup> PERFORMANCE

Caitlin McBroom finds an outlet in different styles of dance

Number of dance genres McBroom performs

Since she was two and a half years old, freshman Caitlin McBroom has been dancing. "I do ballet, lyrical, contemporary, tap, hip-hop, musical theater, modern, pretty much everything," McBroom said.

McBroom admitted to experiencing nerves before a competition. "I'm pretty used to it. I've been doing it for a while but sometimes it depends. If it's a really hard competition, then I do get nervous," McBroom said.

She dances for Divine Dance Center which is a company studio. "I've been at my studio the whole time

"Dance is a way I can express feelings that I wouldn't be able to otherwise. It's my personal outlet away from school."

-Caitlin McBroom, 9

For most of the competitions, her team tended to stay close to Virginia. "We go to South Carolina and North Carolina a lot, and we've been to Georgia once, but typically [competitions are] somewhere near Tennessee," McBroom said.

I've been dancing. I've been on the team since I was five," McBroom said.

The team had practices Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and sometimes Sunday. "Usually for each individual class or rehearsal it will be one or one and a half hours, but some days I have three or four classes, some days I have one- it just depends," McBroom said.

Traveling with the team provided plenty of bonding opportunities. McBroom developed some close dance friendships over the years, "Some people leave and some people join late, but typically it's the same five people that I have been the closest with since I was a baby," McBroom said, "One of my best friends joined my studio last year. She danced at Ardell [dance school], but now she is one of my closest friends. Another one of my friends I met when I was three and we have been close friends for so many years now."

McBroom shared that just like in the show "Dance Moms," parents got involved in their child's dance career. "I know some people who are seventeen and still can't do anything for themselves, but most people start wanting to be independent [with dance] around thirteen," McBroom said.

Above all, dance served as an escape for McBroom. "Dance is a way I can express feelings that I wouldn't be able to otherwise. It's my personal outlet away from school," McBroom said.

The competition season ran from March to April or May, and then the team went to nationals, which is about a week long.

Making music with his timpani, sophomore Noah Pickelsimer prepares for his winter concert. "In class I play a lot more instruments than in marching band. In marching band I only play bass drum. The drums are different because the bass drum is vertical and everything else is pretty much horizontal. I prefer band class over marching band because I don't like to march as much," Pickelsimer said. photo by

A CLOSE CONNECTION

As one of 24 parent-child pairs in the school, the Iademarcos share what they enjoy about being Knights together

"It's nice to have a special connection with my daughter in school, and I like having her here because I get to see her everyday."

MR. NICHOLAS IADEMARCO

"I like having my dad as a teacher because there are little things throughout the day. He will leave notes on my car, and I talk to him after lunch. It's something special to have in my high school experience."

IT'S ALL IN THE FAMILY

Students and staff reflect on the experience of sharing a school with family

"My favorite part of having my mom here is the free candy that I get when I see her."

RUBY BILLS (9)

"I love having my kids here. It's more convenient and it's also nice just to be more aware of the things going on in their lives, so I think it's great."

MRS. KATHERINE BILLS

"My mom loves to try to embarrass me during school, but I don't really mind, I like her being here. The best part of it all is really just getting to see my family more and knowing that there are a few more people that care about me."

ELIJAH BILLS (11)

"Although I don't see her often, it is super cool to to have my mom at school with me. It is nice logistically because my siblings can drive with her when I sleep in. Mostly though, it gives me peace of mind to know that if I ever need anything or if something bad happens she's right there to help."

GEORGIA BILLS (12)

"I like that my mom gives me Andes Candies."

NOAH WRIGHT (11)

"Having my mom at the school with me helps me connect with other teachers."

CHARLOTTE WRIGHT (9)

"I like having my kids at school with me, because it's fun to see them."

MRS. JULIE WRIGHT

DEFEND THE CASTLE

Help Save the Next Girl club hosts a self-defense course

Learning new skills. freshmen Lucia Pietravalle and Rory Basel attend Help Save the Next Girl's self-defense class in the auxiliary gym on March 8. Pietravalle liked that she got the opportunity to learn how to be prepared for any situation. The host of the class was club sponsor Mrs. Amy Leonard. They learned a variety of skills to help them get out of difficult situations. "They did this thing where they would hold onto your wrists, and told you how to hold and maneuver your hands to get away," Pietravalle said.

Isabelle Elise Arbaugh

Isabelle, all great things have small beginnings. We have watched you grow from before you were born to now and we look forward with great expectation to where you are headed. We will always be here to remind you, in the words of Christopher Robin to Winnie-the-Pooh, "You are braver than you believe, stronger than you seem, and smarter than you think. But the most important thing is, even if we are apart, We'll always be with you."

Jordyn Shaywitz

We're so incredibly proud of you. You've become such a precious and honorable young woman. Graduating is one of the greatest accomplishments in life. If we could give you one thing in life. We would give you the ability to see yourself through our eyes. Only then you will realize HOW SPECIAL you are to us. Never forget that life is tough but so are you. Everything you need is already inside you. Don't wait for others to light your fire. You have your own matches!

IT DOESN'T END HERE

Dancing from the White Rabbit, senior Ava Giannini puts on a show as the Mad Hatter opposite sophomore Michael Green. On December 10, the theater department performed "Alice in Wonderland." Giannini has worked in the theater department for the past four years of high school. "I love theater because you get to be someone you're not. I'm going to miss the program," Giannini said. photo by D. Murphy

22 choir students came together to sing the National Anthem at the senior night basketball game (56, 57). The band One Eye Open created a total of 37 songs (18, 19). Eco Club collected a total of 60 pounds of plastic for the Trex Recycling Challenge (54, 55). The Color Guard team used a total of 75 flags for every performance (58, 59). Sophomore James Kupidlovsky had about 255 followers on his Bible study TikTok (26, 27). But it doesn't end here.

IT'S ALL IN THE [DETAILS]

ASSEMBLY:

Volume 68 of ACCOLADE was printed by Herff Jones Inc. in Edwardsville, Kansas. The theme was "It's All Here, Take a Look." The inspiration for the theme was to focus in on the little details that make this year special if we just take the time to look. The 24 students in the yearbook class produced the 188-page book using eDesign. The binding was Smyth sewn and squarebacked. The custom laser cut four-color litho cover was printed on Permocote base material. UV gloss coating and suede lamination were applied. The four-color endsheets were printed on Signature White S 01 stock. The paper stock was 100# matte paper of a 9 x 12 format. The fonts belonged to Craft Gothic and MicroSquare families. HJ representative was Olivia Nicholson, and the customer service adviser was Deb Rock. Portraits, team and club photos were by Lifetouch.

SPECIAL THANKS:

Olivia Nicholson: You're the best yearbook rep on the planet and no one can tell me otherwise. Thank you for sticking with us through yet another excellent year. We couldn't do it without you!

Deb Rock: Thank you for dealing with our page re-submissions and helping us with plant issues. You're the glue that holds the process together!

Mrs. Gabriella Weston: Thank you for being our money expert! You made my life so much easier this year (and every year) just by being so good at your job. I appreciate you so much!

Mrs. Deeds, Mr. Parker, Mr. Hall and Mr. Shipp: Thank you for trusting and supporting us! We are lucky to have you on our team.

Mrs. Chrystal Shawn: Our index queen! Thank you for being the wisest former yearbook adviser ever. It was so helpful to have you in the building to turn to with all our questions. Thank you so much!

Jessica Farmer: Thank you for being our go-to photo extraordinaire. This was a challenging year, but you were always there for us to help with any challenges we experienced. Thank you!

Sam and Lilly: You two are the best editors-in-chief an adviser could hope for. Thank you for being so dedicated, enthusiastic, creative and much more organized than me. I truly cannot express how much of an impact you have had on this program. You are literal superstars. Go conquer the world!

Addy, Siena, Kate, Emma V., Sarah and Emma S.: Thank you for being amazing content editors this year. Your hard work did not go unnoticed. You are the glue that holds us all together. I am so excited to see the wonderful things you will accomplish as you venture into the world!

Our Staff: Not at all exaggerating when I say this is the best staff we've ever had. You made naming club photos, interviewing (and re-interviewing) students, writing an amazing detail-filled caption, arranging spreads and getting the perfect action shot look easy. You're the best!
